Despite many gripes, survey proves mail efficiency

By BOB NAGEY
P-B Staff Writer

Oliver Grundy of Montclair claims that his birthday greeting took four days to reach a brother in Ontario . . .

S. I. Bellman of Claremont received a post card from Europe six weeks after it was postmarked . . .

Special delivery letters from Los Angeles to the Progress-Bulletin frequently trail first class mail by a full day . . .

Packages sent fourth class from the East Coast often take a month to reach their destinations in Pomona . . .

Then there is the case of Mrs. Lee Ann Clark, a former resident of La Verne, now living in Long Beach, who says she recently received a packet of documents at her home, addressed to La Verne Realtor Sarah Carey. Knowing Mrs. Carey personally, she hand-delivered the documents on her next visit to La Verne . . .

And hundreds of patrons in the valley complain that their letters arrive a day late.

It appeared somewhat inconsistent with such evidence that the U.S. Postal Service claimed last summer that 95 per cent of the first class mail posted before the last pickup in the Southland got to its destination within the Los Angeles area the next day, and that the letters were accurately delivered in 99 per cent of the cases.

But a test mailing by the Progress-Bulletin staff letters not only substantiated the validity of those claims, but came up with a higher rate.

Of 60 letters mailed not only around nine cities in the valley but also in Los Angeles and in Orange and San Bernardino counties, only one arrived a day late.

In all cases, the letters were posted before the final pickups of the day. Only one letter, mailed in San Dimas to a person living in San Dimas, failed to arrive the next day.

The results are all the more impressive when it is noted that all mail except those dropped into local boxes at the post offices, even those slated for intracity delivery, go through a central processing center in Industry.

But because the postal business is so heavy — the Industry center handled two million letters a day and sends

Major election reform law signed by President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford signed into law today the most far-reaching political campaign reforms in the nation's history.

The sweeping reforms, a direct result of the Watergate scandals, will go into effect in 1975 and are certain to revolutionize political campaigns for federal office.

Ford invited all 535 members of Congress to witness the historic signing in the East Room of the White House.

Five of the men directly responsible for the law are in U.S. District court today, on trial for conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up.

There is no question that the alleged excesses of former President Nixon's re-election campaign are behind many of the reforms.

The major features of the comprehensive package, approved by Congress this week, are the taxpayer financing of presidential elections, primaries, and national conventions; a tight limit on political contributions; and stingy ceilings on candidate spending.

The legislation also creates a six-member Federal Elections Commission, with civil enforcement powers, to administer the reforms.

Major provisions of the bill:

GENERAL ELECTION FINANCING —Beginning with the 1976 elections, the Republican and Democratic presidential candidates can receive $20 million each from the federal treasury for the general election. They can choose either federal funds or private contributions but cannot mix the two. Other party candidates can receive a proportionate share of the $20 million based on election results.

PRIMARY FINANCING — Candidates to become eligible for public financing must first raise $100,000, with $5,000 from each of 20 states. The government will then match the first $100,000 and every private contribution of $250 up to a ceiling of $5 million.

CONVENTION FINANCING —The Republican and Democratic parties can receive $2 million each from public funds to finance their conventions.

CONTRIBUTIONS —Individuals are limited to overall contributions of $25,000 in a single year and no more than $3,000 to an individual candidate —$1,000 in the primaries, $1,000 in a runoff, and $1,000 in the general election. Organizations can contribute $5,000 to a candidate in each—the primary, a runoff, and the general election. Presidential candidates can contribute $50,000 to their own campaigns, Senate candidates $35,000 and House candidates $25,000.

SPENDING — Presidential candidates are limited to $20 million in the federal election and $10 million in the primaries. Senate candidates can spend eight cents times the voting age population or $100,000 in the primaries and 12 cents or $150,000 in the general election. House candidates are limited to $70,000 in the primaries and $70,000 in the general election.

Other provisions require candidates to establish a central campaign committee; require candidates report contributions and expenditures; ban cash contributions over $100; forbids contributions from foreigners; prohibits contributions in another person's name; and treats loans as contributions.

The measure also limits honorariums for elected or appointed officials to $15,000 in a year and no more than $1,000 for a single article or speech; allows state and local employes to participate in federal campaigns unless barred by state law; permits the use of excess campaign funds to defray the expenses of holding public office.

Farmers vow to hold meat off market

By United Press International

The National Farmers' Organization has vowed to hold meat off the market if farmers can't get the prices they want for their livestock.

NFO President Oren Lee Staley Monday night called for a "get tough policy" to boost prices on cattle, hogs and dairy products.

Staley spoke to an NFO gathering at Fayette, Iowa, one of 160 such meetings held across the country Monday night to plan farmers' strategy for improving prices.

The meetings —the first such gatherings ever called by the huge national farm cooperative —were the first step in a coordinated program to boost prices.

Staley said the group "is anxious to fight," but added that it must first analyze farmers' support for their program.

He said NFO members would be called together to determine the prices they must have for their products and that those prices would then be announced.

"Farmers will be advised to hold their production on the farms until their price demands are met," Staley said.

$150,000 truck hijack occurs in valley; hired driver, rig and load disappear

Ontario police this morning are wondering what a truck driver plans to do with a tractor trailer truck loaded with $150,000 in rubber products he allegedly stole from another driver Sunday.

Arkansas truck driver Clay Mitchell, 37, reported the theft to Ontario police Monday afternoon. Mitchell, a driver for B.J. McAdams Inc. in the City of Industry told police that he and a co-driver, Art Scribner, 22, he hired in Little Rock, Arkansas, drove into the Union 76 Truck Stop at Milliken Avenue and the San Bernardino Freeway Sunday. Mitchell said he asked Scribner to stay with the truck, loaded with the rubber products, while he went to pick up a car he had in Industry.

Mitchell said he returned about 40 minutes later and discovered that the tractor trailer rig and Scribner had disappeared.

Mitchell told officers he hired Scribner as a relief driver to help him haul the rubber products load. Mitchell could not tell officers Scribner's home address, however.

A B. J. McAdams Co. official said this morning that the company hoped that the relief driver "wasn't lying in a ditch somewhere with a bump on his head," indicating that the company believes some type of hijacking plot might have been involved.

The official said that the truck was hauling a load of rubber products from Little Rock, Ark., to the Rubber Maid Co. in Vernon. The truck and load were to arrive in Vernon on Monday morning.

Mitchell described the truck tractor as being black and white in color and manufactured by Kenworth Motors. He said the tractor and the large white trailer had "BJM" painted on their sides.

Police this morning had been unable to trace the tractor and trailer rig.

Ehrlichman turns accuser: Nixon acted to save neck

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman's attorney charged today that former President Richard M. Nixon "deceived, misled, lied to and used" and finally forced a resignation from his former No. 2 aide in order "to save his own neck."

Ehrlichman, one of five former Nixon associates on trial in the Watergate cover-up, was portrayed by defense attorney William S. Frates as a victim of the plot who had "repeatedly recommended" that Nixon disclose the truth.

It was the first time Ehrlichman had turned accuser of Nixon, whom he served as chief domestic adviser in the White House until April, 1973, when the Watergate scandal became a major issue.

Nixon, named an unindicted co-conspirator in the cover-up, has been pardoned by President Ford and cannot be tried for any Watergate-related incidents.

Sirica announced he had scheduled a hearing Wednesday afternoon on Nixon's request to be excused as a trial witness on grounds of ill health. He has been subpoenaed by both the prosecution and the defense.

Former White House counsel John W. Dean III, previously Nixon's chief accuser, was to testify later in the day for the prosecution —whose case also was based on the complicity of the former president.

Attorney William S. Frates, his voice booming through U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica's hushed court room, charged that Ehrlichman was the victim of the cover-up plot and not a participant as the government has charged.

Frates' opening statement in Ehrlichman's defense confirmed speculation in recent weeks that Nixon's former aide had broken with Nixon and would accuse him of complicity in the cover-up plot.

"Richard Nixon deceived, misled, lied to and used John Ehrlichman to cover up his own knowledge and activities while publicly stating that John Ehrlichman was one of the finest public servants he had ever known," Frates told the jury which will decide the fate of Ehrlichman and four other former Nixon associates.

"He (Nixon) was deliberately withholding information from him — covering up to save his own neck."

Frates said the evidence — particularly the secret White House tapes —will prove that Ehrlichman "repeatedly recommended a full disclosure" of the truth about Watergate.

"The tapes may have done some people harm but they're the greatest thing that ever happened to John Ehrlichman," he said. "Contrary to obstructing justice, it was everything but that and the tapes will show that chapter and verse."

He stressed that Nixon and former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, one of the co-defendants in the cover-up, never told Ehrlichman about the secret taping system.

He also sought to divorce Ehrlichman from Haldeman, once Ehrlichman's close friend. The two of them once were the powerful men in Nixon's White House.

Congress kills Ford railroad benefits veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted by a large margin Tuesday to override President Ford's veto of legislation granting $7 billion in federal funds to bail out the financially troubled railroad retirement system.

The House vote was the first time that Ford has lost a veto challenge. The Senate is expected to vote to override, probably on Wednesday, thus enacting the legislation.

The House earlier in the day refused to override Ford's veto of a continuing appropriations bill which would have cut off military aid to Turkey.

The railroad retirement bill would restructure the failing retirement system for the nation's railroad workers —a system similar to Social Security —and contribute $285 million a year for the next 25 years from general Treasury funds.

Ford said the expenditure of money prompted him to veto the bill.

Ford asks networks to cover his inflation speech tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford formally asked the major television networks to provide live coverage of his speech tonight on inflation which they originally judged was "not newsworthy enough."

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford wanted live coverage of the speech from Kansas City because he planned to talk "directly to the American people" about voluntary citizen action to slow inflation and conserve energy.

He said Ford submitted a formal request to the three major networks after they read advance copies of the speech and decided it did not warrant a live broadcast.

Nessen said he did not know whether the request would be granted and maintained that the President was "not in the least" upset by the networks original decision.

"The networks did not feel it was newsworthy enough to carry live that the President would be addressing the American people on what they as individuals and collectively can do to assist in the fight against inflation and the effort to save energy," Nessen said in a statement.

"So for the first time in the Ford administration, we have formally requested time ... the President is asking for the time because he feels it is important that the American people hear directly what he has to say about their role in the inflation fighting and energy saving battle."

Bars on windows to keep burglars out trap man who dies in blaze

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The steel bars that Shepherd Mouldin put over his windows to keep out burglars helped kill him today.

Combustibles stored next to a water heater burst into flame and his house caught fire, firemen reported. In the smoke, Mouldin, 29, could not find his way to the front door and tried to break through a window.

But he had bolted steel bars over the windows to keep out burglars.

Firemen said he apprently tried to wrench the bars apart with his hands, and then in desperation hurled his body against them until he was overcome by smoke and burned to death.

His wife, Martha 26, managed to push their two small children between the bars of another window and was rescued by firemen, who put out the blaze in five minutes.

Liddy ordered freed as judge reduces bond

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge today reduced bond from $100,000 to $5,000 on G. Gordon Liddy, silent member of the original Watergate defendants, and ordered him released from jail pending appeal.

The former White House aide, also serving time in the break-in of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office, has been in jail for nearly 21 months. He has steadfastly refused to testify on Watergate.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell reduced the bond and ordered Liddy, 51, released from the District of Columbia jail pending outcome of appeals in both the Watergate and Ellsberg cases.

Liddy's attorneys contended he presented no risk of flight and no danger to the community.

The U.S. prosecutor's office did not contest the request for lowered bail by Liddy, one of seven men originally charged with conspiracy, burglary, bugging and wiretapping in the Watergate break-in.

Gesell said he had discussed the case with U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who earlier set $100,000 bond in the Watergate case.

"It is entirely appropriate to grant bond to Mr. Liddy at this time," said Gesell, and warned defense attorney Peter Maroulis that Liddy should not leave the country and should report to federal marshals "when and if either or both of these convictions is upheld."

Flournoy proposes state oversee local land usage

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gubernatorial candidate Houston I. Flournoy today proposed adoption of a statewide land use plan to protect California from "hodge-podge" development at the local level.

The Republican candidate, seeking to establish himself as a nominee unbound by the policies of retiring Gov. Ronald Reagan, offered the proposal as a key feature in what he termed a "new set of priorities."

"Now, I'm not suggesting for a moment that the state get into zoning," he said in remarks prepared for the prestigious Los Angeles Town Hall of civic and business leaders. "That would be left to the local communities."

"But the state must have the tools—injunction or otherwise— to protect its overall land plan from nonconforming uses at the local level."

Flournoy amplified on a proposal, outlined in general terms Monday to about 600 students at UCLA during an appearance with liberal Republican Rep. Paul N. "Pete" McCloskey.

McCloskey—a campus favorite because of his early opposition to the Vietnam War and his demand for former President Richard Nixon removal from office—told the students that Flournoy's support of land use planning "runs right in the face of every fat cat Republican financier and real estate developer in this state.""

Flournoy's campus appearance was intended to demonstrate his ability to draw support from all wings of the party, from Republicans such as McCloskey on the liberal side to those on the right such as Reagan.

Flournoy, the 45-year-old two-term state controller, said land use planning was an area "where I would give leadership from the beginning." He said it was "urgent" to define "broad land areas for particular uses."

"If we don't protect our agricultural land, in 10 years we will be ripping up asphalt to find places to plant our crops," he warned, noting that California is the nation's leading producer of food.

He said —if elected-he would undertake development immediately of a land use plan whose enforcement could be worked out by the legislature.

"What I am proposing is a comprehensive and coordinated plan to replace the hodge-podge system that is developing today," Flournoy said.

As he began the final three weeks of campaigning against front running Democrat Edmund Brown Jr. Flournoy kept stressing —at UCLA, at a black clergyman's meeting in Watts and at a Beverly Hills cocktail fund raiser—that he was independent and unshackled by the policies of Reagan.

Brown has hit hard at the theme that Flournoy represented "recycled Reaganism" but Flournoy time and again noted that he opposed repeal of open housing laws while Reagan supported repeal; that he favored payroll withholding taxes when Reagan did not, and that he opposed some of Reagan's University of California policies.

Flournoy said his "style, perspective, values and priorities were as different from Reagan's as Brown's were from those of his father, former Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

He said his first priority would be to "build a new team in Sacramento —younger and more pragmatic, representative of a broad cross section of California."

Area man gets prison term for stabbing wife

Larry L. Miller, 34-year-old La Verne man charged in the stabbing of his wife March 24, has been ordered to state prison.

Miller, a draftsman of 1957 Evergreen Ave., was sentenced by Pomona Superior Court Judge Francis J. Garvey after a 90-day period of psychological and physical examination. In sending Miller to prison for from one to 10 years, Garvey denied an application for probation.

Miller pleaded guilty May 24 to assault with a deadly weapon against his wife, Linda, 34. She was stabbed in the back and abdomen and fled from the apartment building, screaming for help. She was in serious condition for several days at a hospital.

Apartment building residents told police that Miller yelled, "she deserved it," after the attack. He was arrested several days later when police found him asleep in his car parked in an alley behind the apartment building.

Restaurant cashier pleads guilty to theft charges

Mary Catherine Wagner, 42-year-old former Pomona Buffums' cashier charged with stealing an estimated $30,000, has pleaded guilty in Pomona Superior Court.

Mrs. Wagner, of Alta Loma, entered the plea before Judge Francis J. Garvey who scheduled her probation hearing and sentencing for Nov. 21. He also ordered her examined by a psychiatrist before that hearing.

Mrs. Wagner was a hostess-cashier in the department store's restaurant. She came under investigation of Buffums' security agents after shortages were noticed after she had been on duty.

The agents kept the suspect under observation at her job during the early days of April and subsequently accused her of the thefts. One agent, Dorothy Parsons, testified at the preliminary hearing that Mrs. Wagner had 14 restaurant sales checks, four $20 bills and a roll of dimes in her tote bag when taken to the office for questioning.

Authorities charged later that Mrs. Wagner destroyed sales checks and then removed the corresponding amount of money from the cash register.

They said they believe the thefts occurred over a one-to two-year period.

Stranger's shout helps family flee blaze that ruined home

Mrs. Sandra Faldon, 30, of 513 Dunsview Ave., La Puente, was awakened at 5:20 this morning by someone shouting "fire."

Mrs. Faldon saw the smoke and flames and rushed to evacuate her three small children from the burning home.

It took units from the county fire department about 20 minutes to bring the fire under control. No one was injured in the blaze but fire damage to the structure and its contents is estimated at $20,000.

The person who awakened the family was not identified and firemen believe it may have been a neighbor or someone passing by who saw the smoke.

An investigation is underway to determine the cause of the fire.

Truck and stolen camper spotted by law, abandoned

La Verne police today said that a pickup truck, abandoned with a stolen camper shell Sunday night while being followed by the Pomona Police Department helicopter crew, has been traced to a former Montclair resident.

The pursuit occurred after the crew spotted two men trying to place the shell on their pickup in a field next to the El Rancho bar at 2044 Arrow Highway.

The shell had been taken from the truck of bar owner Chris Lopez and was about halfway aboard the men's truck when the crew lighted up the area with their searchlight.

The pair jumped in their vehicle and sped away, followed from above by the helicopter crew. The men abandoned the pickup at Third Street and fled on foot.

Detective D. F. Griggs said the abandoned vehicle was traced to the Montclair man but he has moved. This morning, Griggs said, police received a teletype reporting the vehicle stolen. Officers now are trying to identify fingerprints taken off both the pickup and the shell.

Commission backs 2 city annexations

SAN BERNARDINO (CNS) — The Local Agency Formation Commission has approved the annexation by Chino of two sites, following approval of the annexations by the county's Environmental Review Board.

One of the sites is a dairy owned by Klass Van Vliet, located on a six-acre site south of Eucalyptus at Telephone Avenue. The other is a 10-acre site on Mountain Avenue 660 feet south of Chino Avenue.

Clear as a bell here but not in L.A.

Winds from a mild Santa Ana condition are bringing summer like weather to valley communities.

But the winds aren't strong enough to reach areas of Los Angeles where fog caused the closing of Los Angeles International Airport this morning and tied up early morning rush hour traffic.

Officials at Ontario International Airport said 22 planes from Los Angeles were diverted to Ontario between 8:30 Monday night and 7 this morning because of the heavy fog that moved in along the coast.

Forecasters at the National Weather Service said the warm weather will continue at least until Saturday. The high today and Wednesday in Pomona is expected to reach 92 degrees with nighttime lows in the mid 50s.

Motorcyclist is injured in spill

A young Diamond Bar man was injured Monday night when his motorcycle hit a dirt mound in an open field near Chapparal Avenue south of Dry Creek Road in Diamond Bar.

Rick Smith, 18, of 285 Rock River Road, was taken to Doctors Hospital in La Puente where he was treated and released.

The youth was going west on Chapparal apparently at high speed without headlights when he ran off the road and into the open field, said highway patrolmen. The cycle hit the dirt mound and overturned.

Woman attacked, suffers head injury

A 23-year-old Cucamonga man was booked in West End Jail this morning after allegedly striking a Pomona woman in the back of the head with a steel bar Monday in a parking lot at Chaffey College in Alta Loma.

Debbie Macherzak of 12469 Roswell Ave., Pomona, who suffered several head lacerations in the attack, was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital and later released.

Antonio Santana Lopez, 23, of 8545 Calle Feliz, Cucamonga, was arrested by sheriff's deputies on the campus and booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

Deputies who were called to the campus by a security guard said that Lopez surrendered without incident.

The motive for the assault was not immediately determined.

Trio sought in Marine's killing

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO (UPI) — Three men were sought today for the execution style killing of one of two Marines robbed five miles east of here.

Pvt. Joseph Mosac, 20, was shot in the back on a rural road near Ortega Highway Sunday afternoon, Orange County Sheriff's Capt. James Broadbelt said.

Mosac and Pvt. Ronald Sanders, both assigned to the 1st Battalion of the 3rd Marine Division, based in Hawaii, were given a ride from an area near a San Clemente bus station by three men, Broadbelt said.

The three drove their victims north on Interstate 5 and east on Ortega Road in their 1971 Plymouth, investigators said.

The car stopped off the highway, and the Marines were relieved of their wallets containing a total of $37 and forced to lie face down on the ground, Broadbelt said.

He quoted Sanders as saying one of the suspects fired a bullet into Mosac's back and the robbers fled in their car.

Sanders notified a security guard at a nearby sand and gravel company.

Broadbelt offered no motive for the shooting of one Marine and the release of the other.

Explosion reveals secret drug lab

ENCINO, Calif. (UPI) — An explosion and fire Monday revealed the existence of a clandestine laboratory capable of producing enough of the drug PCP to fill the illicit market in Los Angeles county and surrounding areas, police reported.

Narcotics officers were hunting two young men, described as in their 20s, seen fleeing from the burning building following the explosion.

The laboratory was in a guest house hidden in an orange grove of a secluded house in this Los Angeles suburb.

Officers said they found 15 pounds of PCP, or phencyclidine, and 150 pounds of raw ingredients, three vats, two small stills and other equipment making up a professional quality laboratory. The operation appeared to have been in business for some time, according to Lt. William Gartland.

School violence wrap-up

Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — Racial fights broke out among black and white children in the hallways of troubled Hyde Park High School today. At least four students were injured, including two whites who were stabbed.

Some children were carried out of the school on stretchers. One of those stabbed was a 15-year-old white boy, officials said. The injured were taken to Carney and Faulkner hospitals.

The outbreak caused the school to close early. Buses were sent to take the black students home.

The City Hall information center said the school was "in an uproar" with "general confusion and some white parents taking their children out" right after the fights were reported.

There was a report of some minor stoning about two blocks from the school.

Ambulances and hundreds of police, including the tough tactical force, were rushed to the school on the 23rd day of a court ordered plan to integrate Boston's public schools.

Charleston

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — A firebomb was thrown through a window into an empty grade school classroom Monday, shattering an uneasy calm that prevailed for several days in the dispute over school books here.

The floor of the classroom and tops of several desks were scorched by the gasoline-filled jar, school officials said.

Damage to the Loudendale Elementary School was termed minimal by the Kanawha County Sheriff's Department.

Picketing went on at various school installations and an around-the-clock vigil was continued outside the Kanawha County Jail where the Rev. Ezra Graley, one of the leaders of the demonstrations against the books, was serving a 60-day jail term for contempt of court.

The demonstrators claim the books are anti-God, anti-American and contain unsupportable passages on sexual activity, drugs and radicalism.

Louisiana

DESTREHAN, La. (UPI) — Classes were half-full but calm Monday at the re-opening of elementary and middle schools in St. Charles Parish where bloody student warfare left one youth dead last week.

Authorities said attendance was off an average of nearly 49 per cent at the four schools which opened their doors one week after Tim Weber, 13, was shot to death at Destrehan High School.

The high school remained closed indefinitely today while school officials considered a list of 12 security demands submitted by the teachers, including a request for an eight-foot fence topped with barbed wire to surround the school.

"There was not a sign of anything on the outside of the schools that would indicate anything but normal," said a spokesman for St. Charles Parish Sheriff Julius B. Sellers Jr.

Mideastern situation at a glance

Kissinger

ALGIERS UPI) —Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger wound up his eight-day Arab-Israeli peace mission today, traveling to Morocco for a final four hours of talks before flying home.

Kissinger met Algerian President Houari Boumedienne for three hours Monday night, briefed the third world leader on peace negotiations and talked about oil prices.

The secretary of state was scheduled to fly this morning to Rabat, the Moroccan capital and site of the coming Oct. 26 Arab summit meeting, on the last leg of his eight-day visit to the Middle East and North Africa.

"I want to be invited to the Arab summit because I think I know more Arab foreign ministers than do most heads of state," Kissinger told Boumedienne jokingly.

Arab arrangements for the coming Rabat conference have cut into Kissinger's mission, but the secretary of state remained confident he has made progress toward arranging a new round of Middle East peace talks.

Guerrillas

By United Press International

Israeli troops and border police searched the rugged hills of Western Galilee today for a squad of Arab guerrillas believed on a death mission against frontier settlements.

Police sources said helicopters and low-flying observation planes scanned the Lebanese frontier. Army patrols combed the Galilee countryside in search of the commandos.

The guerrilla team cut across the border at the town of Adamit early Saturday and traveled to Wadi Bezet, a thickly wooded dry river bed, the military command said. The unit was estimated at six to eight men.

Civilian guards at schools near the border were issued extra weapons and the road running along the frontier was closed during the night, police sources said.

Since June 25, when a group of guerrillas killed four Israelis in the coastal resort of Nahariya, Israeli forces have reported killing seven Arab infiltrators in western Galilee.

At the UN

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The leading Arab guerrilla group —denounced by Israel as "10,000 murderers" —has won a formal invitation to the United Nations as the representative of the Palestinian people.

The U.N. General Assembly voted 105-4 with 20 abstentions Monday afternoon to invite the Palestinian Liberation Organization to take part in the Nov. 4 debate on the refugee question.

PLO representative Nabeel Shaakh jubilantly greeted the decision as the first step toward recognizing the Palestinians' right to self-determination.

"We are extremely happy and extremely excited," Shaakh said. "We are filled with emotion that 105 delegations voted for us."

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah blamed the PLO for murdering Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympic games in 1972, ambushing school buses, blowing up airplanes and other terrorist acts.

For plastics research

Stanford chemist wins Nobel prize

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Stanford University chemist Paul J. Flory won the 1974 Nobel Chemistry Prize today for research in plastics and synthetic fibers. The prize for physics went to two British radio astronomers for their discoveries which could be important to finding life in outer space.

Martin Ryle, 56, and Antony Hewish, 50, shared the $123,000 physics prize for their research in radio astrophysics which according to Prof. Olof Rydbeck of the Nobel committee said "could be of great importance as to finding of intelligent life in outer space."

Flory, 64, was commended by the Swedish Academy of Sciences for his findings in the physical chemistry of macromolecules in industry which helped revolutionize the modern plastics industry, including synthetic materials.

PAUL J. FLORY

"He was in this from the start and he laid the basis for all improvements that have been made," Prof. Anders Ehrenberg of the Nobel academy said.

"Chemists used to mix various components and know that they would get nylon, but did not know exactly why," Academy Prof. Sture Forsen said. "Thanks to Flory, they now know why it turns out to be nylon."

Flory said he was "quite taken aback and overwhelmed by this award."

Notified of the award by telephone at his home in Portola Valley, Calif., near the Stanford campus, Flory said, "It's 6 o'clock in the morning here and I'm not awake."

Major U.S. supreme court decisions

Natural gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today let stand an order by the Federal Power Commission which bars the El Paso Natural Gas Co. from giving favored treatment to California power companies when there is a shortage of natural gas.

Under the California contracts, which had been approved by the FPC over the years, natural gas service to large industrial users in California would be cut back only after all service to states served by El Paso east of California had been eliminated.

This could conceivably mean in the event of very critical shortages homeowners in Arizona, New Mexico, Texas and other states would lose gas service while it was continued to all points served in California.

Alien search

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today agreed to determine the constitutionality of a law allowing the U.S. Border Patrol to randomly stop automobiles and question their occupants to determine if they are illegal aliens.

The justices will hear oral arguments in an appeal raised by the government of a ruling by the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals that the law is unconstitutional.

In June, 1973, the highest court held that the Border Patrol could not stop cars randomly and conduct searches. The present case involves only questioning of driver or passengers to determine their origin.

The 9th Circuit said the law allowing the random stops violates the 4th Amendment protection against illegal search and seizure.

Federal land

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today ordered arguments on whether Utah or the United States has title to thousands of acres of mineral rich mud flats surrounding the Great Salt Lake.

No date was set.

A special master, Senior Circuit Judge Charles Fahy of Washington, D.C., has recommended that title go to the state.

The Supreme Court has already ruled that ownership of the Lake itself is vested in Utah. But the federal government, which owns land along the shore, claims title to an area where the water has receded since Utah became a state on Jan. 4, 1896. It cites the common law doctrine of "relicition," which holds that owners of shoreline property have title to adjacent land when waters recede.

Post Office efficiency . . .

more than 160,000 pieces daily to Pomona alone—a one per cent misdelivery can amount to 1,600 daily goods in Pomona.

Under the Industry area center program, the giant machines of the postal service now process mail from 29 post offices ranging from Cucamonga and Corona in the east to Temple City and Alhambra in the west.

Computers at the postal center, installed last November, are designed not only to scan and sort mail more quickly than the mail clerks, but more efficiently than human eyes and hands could process.

Pomona Postmaster Warren Lynch insists that the rate of mistakes has to be less than one per cent.

"Mishandling 1,600 letters a day could kill us," he contended. "I think we, in the valley, are doing much better than that."

The main causes of missent mail, according to the postmaster, are letters which stick to other letters, and wrong ZIP codes.

The main cause of late letters, he insists, is the failure of the sender to observe pickup times.

"If the last pickup of the day is at 5 o'clock, then letters mailed at 5:30 simply have to wait for collection until the next day," he explained. "Of course, they will be a day late. But that's not the fault of the postoffice."

Ontario Postmaster Charles Linck agreed.

"Too often we are blamed for the negligence of those who miss our last pickups," he said. "Obviously we can't process mail which we have not yet received, mail that has not yet been posted."

Those who want to make sure their letters are delivered the following day, even if they post them in the evening, should drop them at the post offices where crews either work all night or shart shortly after midnight.

Those who mail letters to destinations within their own cities can usually obtain next day deliveries even after midnight by dropping them in special boxes marked "local delivery" at their postoffices.

And as far as ZIP codes are concerned, the P-B survey found no appreciable difference in on-time deliveries between those which bore them and those which didn't. The lone letter which was late in the P-B test did not carry a ZIP code.

The P-B tested the mail service by mailing intracity letters in each of the valley's cities. Another test dealt with mailings between cities. A third check tested the late local delivery boxes. In a fourth portion of the test, letters were mailed to Pomona from post offices in the Southland. And a fifth check tested the validity of delivery times at street collection boxes located in cities throughout the valley.

All but one letter—mailed to a San Dimas address from a street box in that city—got to their destinations the following day.

A day after the P-B survey was completed, Ron Johnson of Ontario received his bill from the Southern California Gas Co. The letter was four days late. It had been missent to Ontario, Canada.

And a book sent to the Progress-Bulletin from New York City took 21 days to get here . . .

Then, there is the case of . . . .

3 Russ captured in China to stand trial

HONG KONG (UPI) — Three Soviet helicopter crewmen captured by Chinese militiamen along the Sino-Soviet border will be brought to trial on charges of espionage, Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping has told a group of visiting Canadians in Peking.

Teng, who is one of two vice premiers filling in for ailing Premier Chou En-lai, told Canadian news executives who just returned from a two-week visit to China that "absolutely no progress" had been made in Sino-Soviet border talks.

Tom Gould, vice president of Commercial Television of Canada, said Teng did not indicate when or where the trial would be held.

Obituaries

Mabel Carpenter

Mrs. Mabel S. Carpenter, a former Pomona resident, died Saturday at her home in Leisure World, Laguna Hills, following a six-month illness.

Mrs. Carpenter was born May 1, 1877, in Fremont, Iowa. She came to California in 1911. She lived in Pomona and Claremont before moving to Laguna Hills two years ago.

Surviving are a son, Harold S. Endicott of Leisure World, Laguna Hills, and a daughter, Mrs. Lutie C. Parsons of Whittier.

Funeral arrangements are pending with Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona.

Juanita Cisneros

Mrs. Juanita Cisneros, wife of David Cisneros of 877 Wilson St., Pomona, died Saturday when she was hit by a car on Foothill Boulevard in Cucamonga.

Mrs. Cisneros was born Nov. 21, 1950, in Delano. She lived most of her life in La Verne. She was a member of the Holy Name of Mary Catholic Church in San Dimas.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son David Jr., and a daughter, Rene Jean, both at home; her mother, Mrs. Mary Helen Dizon of La Verne; four brothers, Louie Diaz and Frank Dizon, both of La Verne, Tony Diaz of Pomona, and Joe Diaz of Santa Barbara; and two sisters, Mrs. Tina Ramirez and Mrs. Isabele Riveria of Pomona.

Rosary will be recited tonight at 7 in the Holy Name of Mary Catholic Church. Funeral Mass will be celebrated Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. at the church. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery in Pomona.

Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona is in charge of arrangements.

Jay Charles Oliver

Jay Charles Oliver of 650 W. Harrison Ave., Claremont, died this morning in the Claremont Manor infirmary after a short illness.

Mr. Oliver was born Aug. 29, 1886, in Rock Falls, Ill. In 1914, he began his service as a secretary of the YMCA in York, Neb. From 1916 to 1950, he was world service secretary of the international committee of the YMCA in China. He and his wife, Lucile, were interned by the Japanese in a camp during World War II, and upon release, returned to Shanghai in 1945 for another five years of service.

In 1950, Mr. Oliver was appointed senior secretary of the YMCA's international committee and sent to Cairo, Egypt. Two years later, he retired from the YMCA and came to Claremont to serve as superintendent of Claremont Manor for three years.

While in Claremont, he served as a deacon with the Community Church, now United Church of Christ, Congregational. He later became a charter member of the Claremont United Methodist Church and is a past chairman of the church board.

Mr. Oliver served as the fund-raising campaign chairman for the Claremont Red Cross chapter in 1956. He was a member of the committee of world service of Pomona Valley YMCA and the Claremont University and Rotary clubs.

Besides his widow, Lucile C., he is survived by a son, John C. of San Bernardino; three daughters, Mrs. Ruth L. Moody of Whittier, Mrs. Mary B. Corliss of Canoga Park and Mrs. J. Frank Jorgensen of Sacramento; a sister, Miss Mary B. Oliver of Pasadena; 10 grandchildren with 12 great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are pending with Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona in charge.

George W. Boyer Jr.

George Wesley Boyer Jr. of 108 Serrano Place, Pomona, died Friday at Pomona Valley Community Hospital following a long illness.

Mr. Boyer was born Oct. 30, 1902, in Morris Cove, Conn. He attended Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, N.Y., then worked in the fields of art, design and advertising in New York City.

As a civilian working with the Air Force, he became chief of graphics at Combined Chiefs of Staff Office in Washington, D.C., in 1942 and in 1943 came with the Air Force staff for weather forecasting and research to Caltech, Pasadena.

He was creative director with Heintz & Co., Advertising, in Los Angeles from 1945 to 1950.

Mr. Boyer helped establish the Los Angeles Directors Club and in partnership with his wife, Lois, established the Boyers, an art consulting business in Pasadena.

Mr. Boyer retired in 1964 and moved to Pomona.

Surviving, in addition to his widow, are a daughter, Susan Ellson of Pomona, and five grandchildren.

Memorial services will be private.

Bertha A Goodell

Bertha A. Goodell of 747 E. Hawthorne St., Ontario, died at San Antonio Community Hospital Sunday after a brief illness.

Mrs. Goodell was born in Chicago, Ill., Nov. 3, 1893. She had lived in Ontario for 15 years. She was a member of Westminister Presbyterian Church, Ontario, the Chino Senior Citzens Club and the Ontario Shuffleboard Club.

She is survived by a son, Robert K. of Anaheim; a daughter, Mrs. Harriet Largent of Cucamonga; six grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Services will be held at Draper Chapel, Ontario, at 3 p.m. Wednesday. Entombment will be in Bellevue Mausoleum, Ontario. Friends may call at Draper Chapel from 2 to 9 p.m. today.

Barbara J. Hawkins

Barbara J. Hawkins, wife of Edward L. Hawkins, 5593 Denver St., Montclair, died Sunday at Glendora Hospital.

Mrs. Hawkins was born on Jan. 15, 1921, in Hammond, Ind., and had been a resident of the valley for 10 months. She was a member of the American Legion Auxiliary 168, in Hammond, Ind.

She is survived also by two sons, Ronald P. of Whiting, Ind., and Thomas L. of Detroit, Mich.; two daughters, Mrs. Kenneth Van Lul of Ontario and Mrs. Karen Sue Kramer of Hammond; her stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Tucker of Brooksville, Fla.; and seven grandchildren.

Friends may call today from 5 to 9 p.m. at the Stone Funeral Home in Upland. Services will be held Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. at Stone Funeral Home with the Rev. Carl Butler of Glendora officiating. Private burial will follow at Bellevue Cemetery in Ontario.

Memorial contributions may be made to the United Kidney Foundation, in care of Glendora Hospital, 583 S. Santa Fe Ave., Glendora.

Short newsprint stocks may force price hike

CHICAGO (UPI) — Newspaper editors and publishers, can expect higher newsprint prices, a paper company official said Monday.

"There's precious little that can be done about it," said Paul McCue, general manager of the Rochester (Minn.) Post-Bulletin, moderator of a discussion on paper costs at the Inland Daily Press Association's 79th convention.

"Most newspaper publishers already have taken steps to reduce waste —we've been trying to save newsprint for years," McCue, chairman of the association's newsprint committee, said in an interview following the discussion.

The paper saving efforts, McCue said, have been appreciable —saving a theoretical 500,000 tons of news print a year —but still there's not enough to supply the demand. One of the panelists said the total U.S. paper demand has been increasing at the rate of 2.9 per cent annually.

"This rate of increase has been the pattern for 10 years," said Gerald D. Reilly, representing Domtar Pulp and Paper Co., New York. Reilly suggested the most logical answer to the problem might be simply to reduce the size of the newspapers.

"But this never has been a popular solution," Reilly said. "Publishers want their newspaper to look like they've always looked. But I don't think there's going to be any way for every publisher to put out as many pages as he would like —there just isn't enough newsprint."

Besides supply there's also price. The panelists warned that new demands from unions representing woodlands workers could result in added costs of production, which must be passed on to the publishers.

"It's a global problem," Reilly said. "There simply is an abundance of literate people with disposable income."

Bridge

He fell like ton of bricks

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Some automatic plays are less automatic than others. The one shown today was first used by Harry Fishbein of New York, one of the great players back in the '30s. This isn't the exact hand but the principle involved is the same.

East wins the first trick with the king of spades and leads the suit back. The slam is a good one. South has already lost the spade finesse but will make his contract if he can score four club tricks.

Opening lead—10 ♠

He has a sure thing against any 3-2 club break — only a 4-1 break can hurt him. In the normal course of events he will play dummy's king of clubs and lead a club back to his ace because if East has four clubs to the jack-nine there is no way to pick the suit up.

East will show out on the second club. South will have a proven finesse against West's jack-nine and be home with the bacon.

When he defended the hand Fishbein played the nine of clubs on the first lead of the suit.

This falsecard gave South a chance to guard against four clubs to the jack in either hand. He fell for it like a ton of bricks. Played the second high club from dummy and went down one trick.

Kohoutek aftermath

The comet Kohoutek disappointed observers last winter by not being as brightly visible as anticipated. But it provided a wealth of information that delighted scientists, reports the National Geographic. Two new compounds found in Kohoutek may help determine how far out in space comets are formed.

VALLEY BRIEFS

Cub Pack 733 to hold session

Diamond Bar Cub Scout Pack 733 will meet Oct. 24 at 7:30 p.m. at the Diamond Point Elementary School.

The pack held its first meeting of the new school year Sept. 25. New cubs were registered. Members of Weblos Den 4 presented a skit.

Awards were presented to Chris Camp, Mike Bentley, David Martin, Scott Newcomer and Sol Smith.

Weblos who received awards are Ken Mayhue, Matt Sellers, Greg Schneider, David Medici, Robbie Rollheiser, Mark Baines, Tom Hsieh and Richard Lucke.

Jim Eiland and Chris LeRoy were inducted into Weblos. Todd Smith, Robbie Clawson and Scott Newcomer were inducted into Boy Scouts.

Adult awards went to Sheri Newcomer, for three year's service to cubbing, and Marilyn Bentley for a year's service.

Todd elected to angus association

Richard K. Todd has been elected to membership in the American Angus Association of St. Joseph, Mo. He is president of the board of trustees at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut.

A Mortician, he is treasurer of Todd Memorial Chapel of Pomona and Claremont.

Todd received one of 261 memberships issued to breeders of registered Aberdeen-Angus in the United States in September, according to Lloyd D. Miller, executive secretary of the American Angus Association.

Five in Pack 330 receive awards

Five boys received awards during the September meeting of Cub Scout 330 held at Serrano Junior High School in Montclair.

Donald Desmore received a recruiting badge while David Meisner was given the craftsman and arrow of light award, William Penrose the aquanaut and naturalist award and Kelly Pyle and Chris Meisner Bob Cat badges.

Industrial park gets first tenant

Control Systems, Inc., is the first tenant in the $2.3 million, eight-acre Valley Industrial Park at 18519 E. Valley Blvd., adjacent to City of Industry.

Its lease for one year is $7,720.

Four buildings with plant and office space have been completed in the park. Three more are planned. J. W. Heger Co. is leasing agent.

Area man named bank manager

Al Aguilar of La Puente has been appointed manager of Bank of America's Beverly-Vermont office in Los Angeles.

His appointment was announced by regional vice president Marty Elenbaas.

Aguilar, with Bank of America since 1960, has been an assistant vice president with the bank's corporate agency department the past two years.

Professor's book is republished

A book by Dr. Leonard C. Pronko, professor of Romance languages, Pomona College, is available in an updated paperbound edition published this month by the University of California Press, Berkeley.

Entitled "Theater East and West: Perspectives Toward a Total Theater," Pronko's book was first published in August 1967. The new paperback edition sells for $3.85.

In his book, Pronko discusses the influence that Oriental drama has had on such playwrights as Brecht, Genet and Beckett. He examines what such a synthesis of Asian and Western creative traditions will mean to the future of Western theater.

Scripps given Italian books

Denison Library at Scripps College has received 43 Italian books for student use from the Italian Consul General's office in Los Angeles.

Included in the gift are books on literary criticism and theory, Italian, Latin American, Greek, Spanish and Roman history, semantics, grammar, Renaissance biography, and contemporary and political philosophy.

Cyclethon will be held Sunday in valley city

Registrations are still being accepted for "Cyclethon '74" to be held in Chino on Sunday.

The event for bike riders is sponsored by the San Bernardino County Heart Association, and is being held in Redlands and Victorville Saturday, and Barstow, San Bernardino and Chino on Sunday.

About 1,000 bike riders are expected to participate.

Participants are expected to enlist sponsors pledged to contribute to the Heart Association on the basis of miles completed by the cyclist.

Along the routes, checkpoints will be established where volunteers can record and certify mileage achieved by participants.

In past cyclethons, some persons have pedaled more than 50 miles. Those who raise the largest amounts for the Heart Association will be eligible for local and statewide prizes, including an automobile.

The cyclethon will begin at 9 a.m. and riders will follow a measured route in each city hosting the event.

Registration forms and information can be obtained at the Heart Association office, 760 N. D St., San Bernardino, phone 888-2241, or at all fire stations, Broadway stores and bike shops in participating communities.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Stop blame game

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My wife is constantly blaming me for everything that's wrong in her life. I think she hates me because I'm a man, but there's not much I can do about that now. Even if I could, I'm not about to zip off to have a sex change. The more she hurls insults at me, the more I find I'm turning around and doing the same. I start to blame her because we don't have more money and can't take a proper vacation. She's a bad housekeeper and I can't figure out what she does all day. We have no children because we decided early in the game that we didn't want them. Now I feel we made a big mistake and we'd be better off if we did have a family. When I get home for dinner it all begins — our blame-game usually after the first cocktail. All the resentments build up and within the next hour they're out. This is supposed to be healthy, but we go over and over the same ground. It's beginning to bore us but we still can't stop. — K.M.

Dear K.M.: It sounds as if you'd both profit from a few sessions with an outside referee, preferably a marriage counselor. When you go over and over the same old arguments, it's time for a change. Obviously, neither of you is making any clear points. If you are, you're not doing anything positive about them so that they can be corrected. This is conterproductive and definitely not healthy.

It's very easy to blame someone else for your own shortcomings, but it's really little more than a cop-out. When a person consistently blames someone else, he's simply refusing to accept any responsibility for his own actions. Blame, even when it's self-blame, isn't positive until the person sets about doing something constructive to change the situation.

Obviously, you can't change your sex and your wife probably wouldn't want you to if you could. What she may want is more freedom, more understanding of her problems (and in many cases, this means, her trap).

Try to put yourself in her position. Why, for instance, should she have a special talent of liking for housecleaning? Do you have tuch a talent or interest? What are the alternatives? Clearly, someone has to be responsibile for the maintenance of your home, but could this be shared? Is it possible for her to get some kind of job to help pay the cost of someone to do this work for you?

I'm not suggesting this as an answer, but I am suggesting the possibilty of compromise and discussion. It's imporant for each of you to examine what you expect from each other, from yourselves and from your marriage. Are your expectations realistic?

It would be far better if you spent your evenings playing the game of trying to think of possible ways to alleviate the situation that is attacking your marriage. Allow your imaginations to have totally free play — no holds barred and see what you come up with. Repetitious arguments deny creativity and limit the possibility of finding solutions for your problems. If this were a work problem would you attack it in the same way?

Some men complain about their wives but refuse to allow them to alter their behavior or their lives when possibilities for change and improvement arise. There's no reason why your wife shouldn-t be active and shouldn't pursue some work that interests her. The more interests she has, the better your marriage is apt to be, and the more interests you'll have to share with each other. Try talking, listening and exchanging ideas. Instead of arguing, blaming and repeating old behavior, try a new creative approach no matter how far out it might seem.

MRS. DANNY HOPKINS

Miss Basich is married in Montrose

Miss Khristine Basich, formerly of Diamond Bar, and Danny Hopkins of Altadena were married in the Unity Church of the Valley, Montrose.

The bride is the daughter of LeRoy Basich of Altadena and Mrs. Kathryn Basich of Laguna Niguel. The groom's mother is Mrs. Goldie Taylor of Mesa, Ariz.

Miss Bunny Masich was maid of honor and Bob Rupp was best man.

Court Week in Ontario

The Ontario Legal Secretaries Association will honor annual Court Observance Week with an after-dinner dessert meeting on Wednesday at the Municipal Court's juryroom.

Dessert will be served at 7 p.m. and the program opens at 7:30 p.m. Speakers will be Judy Huber, librarian for the County Law Library, and Harriet Hanson, jury court coordinator for the West District. Topics are the jury system, functions of a jury coordinator, elementaries of library research and how to keep your law library up-to-date.

Six new members will be initiated. Hostesses will be Mrs. Georgianna Lovelady and Mrs. Marilynn Morell, both of the County Clerk's Office.

Interested persons are invited to attend.

The dusty yellow grains that are found in flowers are pollen. The flowers use it in making the seeds that will grow into new plants.

Plants make the pollen in the saclike anthers of their flowers. Pollen grains are so small that they look like tiny specks.

If you look through a microscope, you can see that pollen has different shapes in different kinds of plants. Some pollen grains are smooth and other kinds of pollen are covered with knobs and spines.

Before a seed can form, a flower must be pollinated. This means that a pollen grain must fall on another part of the flower called the stigma.

When a pollen grain of the same kind of flower catches on the sticky surface of the stigma, the pollen grain sends out a tiny threadlike tube. The tube grows down to a tiny egg cell inside the seed case. Now the egg is fertilized and will become a seed.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

4 boys escape juvenile hall

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — Four teen-aged boys, armed with chairs and sharpened spoons, escaped from the juvenile hall facility during the weekend after overpowering two supervisors.

Authorities said the youths used keys taken from the supervisors to break out. One supervisor was cut on the hand and leg.

Councilmen divided on how to change law

Utility tax exemption plan stymied again

A proposed increase in the city's utility tax exemption for persons over 62 was again bounced back to the city staff by the Pomona City Council Monday night — this time to consider the feasibility of eliminating the tax altogether.

The proposal has been before the City Council for three consecutive sessions as the council members continue to express divergent views of the ordinance.

The city currently grants an exemption from the tax for all households with less than $4,000 annual income. The proposal would amend the current ordinance by increasing the exemption level for senior citizens. Under this proposal the level would be $6,000 for two-member households and $5,200 for one-member households.

Mayor Ray Lepire and council member Georgia Grove expressed satisfaction with the proposal and urged its passage, but their arguments failed to sway Councilmen Charles Bader, Benjamin Ochoa and Adrian Wright.

Wright argued that handicapped persons should be included along with persons over 62 for the new exemption, and at the same time argued that all residents should be treated the same.

Ochoa, a stickler for budgetary considerations, said that he was worried about the effects of exemptions on future city income.

Bader, while joining Wright and Ochoa in returning the proposal to the staff, urged that some thought should be given to scrapping the utility tax completely.

Under the present budget, Pomona's revenue from the tax totals about $1,400,000.

In other action, the council extended the city's trial newspaper recovery program until Dec. 31. The "Ben Recycl-Ed" program has been in operation for 12 weeks and has thus far been a disappointment, hampered by three major problems.

Director of Public Works Ronald Kranzer estimated that scavengers are picking up about two thirds of the newspapers and that the newspapers collected are bringing only about one half the income originally projected.

The major problem, however, is the continuing nonparticipation in the program by many residents, he said.

Although the program is losing a modest amount of money, several council members happily noted that at least a lot of newspapers are being recycled, which is the main goal.

The council also approved, in concept, two possible future realignments of Ganesha Boulevard with E Street east of Brackett Field.

One of the possible alignments would cut through Mountain Meadows Golf Course property, while the second would cut through a portion of the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds from the intersection of Ganesha Boulevard and McKinley Avenue.

The council took the action in hopes that the design for the new county golf course would include provisions for the roadway if needed at a future date.

Kranzer told the council that it might be 10 years or longer before the volume of traffic would warrant the realignment.

United Crusade gifts hold firm

While the economic condition of the nation makes it seem at first glance that it would be more difficult to meet the goal set for United Crusade campaign this year, early indications lead to a different conclusion, says Charles F. Horne, campaign chairman for the San Gabriel-Pomona Valley Region.

Horne reported at a campaign luncheon Monday that preliminary reports from division chairmen seem to indicate that many groups and individuals are giving more this year.

He emphasized that the inflationary trend has hit the United Crusade agencies in two ways: first, their costs have risen, and second, there is a greater need for helping services now with more people needing help.

The luncheon preceded a boat launching at Puddingstone Dam to begin this year's campaign.

"There has never been a time when people need help more than right now and United Crusade really does help people. The usual overhead cost for fund raising is 15 to 30 per cent. United Crusade's overhead is only 7.4 per cent, so the money does go to the people we help, the people who need it," Horne said.

Frank T. Carr, vice president and general manager of United California Bank in Pomona, is also optimistic about this year's campaign. "Although the times are tough we are not encountering any problems. On the contrary, the pacer accounts which have been contacted are either meeting or increasing last year's pledge," he said.

Carr is east group chairman of United Crusade, a zone of the San Gabriel-Pomona Valley Region which includes Pomona, Claremont, San Dimas, Diamond Bar, La Verne and Walnut. The goal set for this zone is $200,000.

Our House will honor those who have helped

Staff members who have contributed their time and effort in building the service capabilities of Our House, Claremont's multi-service youth center, will be honored tonight at 8 o'clock at the center at 480 N. Indian Hill Blvd.

More than 385 persons have helped out at the center over the past four-year period.

The public is invited to attend the meeting and to learn about the programs being planned for the coming year.

Among events for discussion is Our House's second annual Rock-A-Thon where rockers will line Indian Hill Boulevard and Harrison Avenue between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. Nov. 9, and volunteers will rock for pledges to Our House and attempt to set a group rocking world's record.

Last year at the first event, more than $400 was donated through the Rock-A-Thon.

A "thank you" tea will be held Dec. 5 from 4 to 9 p.m. to thank and honor Our House friends and donors.

Claremont Youth Resources Group Inc., the sponsoring group of Our House, is composed of the service's volunteer staff which works at Our House. The group will celebrate its fourth anniversary in November.

Our House now operates a 24-hour-a-day hot line, (626-HELP) full-crisis counseling programs at the center 6 p.m. to midnight six days a week, on going family and youth counseling services, programs for public education, and emergency housing services.

More recently Our House has joined with the Claremont School District and local police to provide on-campus juvenile diversion, to keep predelinquent youth out of the juvenile justice system, and provide alternatives to suspension.

Trustees to discuss education reform plan

The Chino Board of Education has scheduled a special meeting tonight to discuss the proposed statewide reform of intermediate and secondary education.

Trustees will meet at 7 p.m. in the district board room at 5130 Riverside Drive.

A 36-member commission, formed by Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, has been collecting opinions on what grades seven through 12 should be doing by the year 2000.

But financing still unsettled

City approves $200,000 golf clubhouse proposal

If funds are available, construction of a $200,000 clubhouse will begin at the San Dimas Canyon Golf Course early next year.

The City Council approved revised plans for the clubhouse Monday night and expressed support of the project but City Manager Robert Poff said the construction all depended on "available funding."

He also said a metal storage building to house golf carts will be constructed about a month before work on the clubhouse begins.

Poff said the revised plans show a savings of $40,000 to $50,000 over previous plans but will eliminate the underground storage garage for the golf carts. The previous plans included revamping of the present clubhouse while the revised plans will allow for demolition of the present facility and construction of a new building at the same site.

Mrs. Robert Haefner, president of the San Dimas Canyon Women's Golf Club, told members of the council that there is a pressing need for a new clubhouse.

She said club membership has doubled this year and she anticipates that membership will again double next year.

"Members love the golf course but are embarrassed by the facilities," Mrs. Haefner said. She told the council that "it would make a lot of people happy" if the council approved construction of a new clubhouse.

Poff said funding for the clubhouse will depend on the interest rate and available financing. He said the lending situation is a "bit freeer" than when the project was first proposed last June.

He said he will take two alternatives for financing to the Golf Course Advisory Committee this week for its recommendation. One would be for an interim temporary note with a local bank until June of 1975 or financing with revenue bonds. The revenue bonds would be issued by the San Dimas and La Verne Joint Powers Authority that operates the golf course. The City of San Dimas owns 90 per cent of the facility and the City of La Verne owns 10 per cent.

Annexation, home for children on council's agenda

A 150-acre annexation, including a home for children with behavioral problems, will be considered by Chino city councilmen at tonight's meeting.

The annexation, bounded by Chino and Schaefer avenues on the north and south and the Corona Expressway and the western city limits, is a resubmittal of previous moves to annex, but now includes, in addition, the children's home.

City officials indicate that Hillview Acres Children's Home, 3683 Chino Ave., has asked to be annexed to the city.

"They will eventually need city services," said Gale Carr, director of planning and community development. "Also, they would like to become more active in the city by being a part of it."

The annexation must be resubmitted to the county Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFC).

Earlier this year, LAFC denied two annexations which total 90 acres within the 150 acres now being considered. Councilmen at that time blasted the decision as "arbitrary and capricious."

The two annexations were submitted orignally by property owners desiring development of single family homes. The move came under fire from horse owners and agricultural property owners who charged the homes would change their "lifestyles."

LAFC had recommended that the boundaries of the annexation be extended to avoid leaving out individual parcels, within the proposed area. Carr said that is the reason for the additions.

The council also will hear a presentation, at the 7:30 p.m. meeting, from Jericho House, a local drug counseling center.

Flu shots for senior citizens

Free flu shots will be offered valley residents 65 and over Thursday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the La Verne Community Building and the Palomares Community Center in Pomona.

In Monday's Progress-Bulletin this clinic erroneously was announced for today.

Similar free flu clinics will be held Oct. 24 at the Claremont Women's Club and at the Washington Park Community Center in Pomona. Hours will be the same.

The clinics are sponsored by the Los Angeles County Health Department

Free rides will be offered to those who want to take the shots by volunteers from the Bethel Baptist Church of Montclair and the First Baptist Church of Pomona.

Those who need transportation may telephone the volunteer service at 622-5273 between 10 a.m. and noon.

Firemen douse 2 grass fires

Pomona firemen put out two grass fires Monday afternoon in vacant fields near Dudley Avenue north of the San Bernardino Freeway.

Both of the fires burned less than an acre of brush.

Children playing with matches are believed to have started a fire Monday at 6:56 p.m. in a garage of a vacant house at 1821 Greenacre Road. The fire caused $200 damage to the structure.

A grease fire caused $300 damage to the vent over the deep fryer at Lizzie's Kitchen, 106 E. Mission Blvd., early Monday morning.

Veysey will speak on inflation spiral

Congressman Victor Veysey, R-43rd Dist., will discuss "The Inflationary Spiral — Means to Bring It Under Control" when he speaks to the Pomona Valley Personnel Association Wednesday noon.

The luncheon will be held at Howard Johnson's Restaurant in Claremont and will be open to the public.

The association provides information and expertise in the industrial relations field for industrial, retail and educational organizations.

Those who want to attend the luncheon should make reservations by telephoning Duane Slocum at 629-4071, or Gwen Brevig at 595-2252.

This is an announcement to my friends and patients that I am retiring from practice.

Opinion

Bad roads lead to rising prices

Tired of being told of spring flood here, summer drought there and fall frost somewhere else have wiped out this or that crop and that the family food bill is going up, up, up?

Well, try this one on as a reason for increasing food prices: The deterioration of the nation's rural roads and bridges.

The price you pay for beans or beef or anything else has transportation costs cranked into it. If bad roads wear down a farmer's or a hauler's truck, or a dangerous bridge forces him to take an extensive detour, the cost of the repairs or the extra gasoline is figured into the selling price of what he carries.

Multiply this by the tens of thousands across the country and inadequate roads can have a real effect on your grocery bill, says The Road Information Program (TRIP), a highway-oriented research and information group based in Washington, D.C.

The railroads have abandoned about 40,000 miles of track since 1938, TRIP notes, and have proposed dropping another 7,000 miles, mostly in rural areas. This increases the burden on existing roads for trucking food to market. Already trucks handle about 75 percent of all food products.

Yet the Federal Highway Administration considers more than a third of America's rural roads — a total of 1.2 million miles — to be "intolerable' because of ruts, bumps, patches and potholes.

Not only that, but about one out of every six of the country's 560,000 bridges is dangerous, says Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W.Va.), chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee. This doesnt mean they will fall down tomorrow. It does mean that they are not safe for the loads they are carrying.

What's the answer? According to TRIP, a concerted, sustained effort to repair and strengthen our country roads and bridges. The alternative is even higher food and road repair costs in the future.

Who really benefits from contributions?

Americans gave a whopping $24.5 billion to charities last year. Unfortunately, only part of this huge sum actually went to the needy.

According to "Everybody's Money," a quarterly publication of the Credit Union National Assn., large percentages of the monies collected by professional fundraisers and organizations go for fees and program costs rather than benevolent services, at the expense of an unknowing public.

For example, a fundraising organization hired by the Police Chiefs of America to raise money for the survivors of police killed in the line of duty produced $400,000 but subtracted $376,000 for expenses, leaving only $24,000 for the actual fund.

By contrast, Easter Seals collected more than $52.8 million in 1972, of which 62 per cent went to program services. Likewise, 60 per cent of the $84.1 million given to the American Cancer Society in 1972 went to research and public education.

The public's right to know where its charity money really goes is being championed by Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin (D-Calif.) in a bill now before Congress. The bill, H.R. 11911, would, among other things, require charities to disclose full financial information upon request.

The bill wouldn't be a cure-all, however. Religious organizations would be exempt and last year, 41 per cent of all charitable donations went to such groups.

Don't think that charities aren't interested in your small contributions. More than 80 per cent of the almost $25 billion given last year came from individual donors. Those $1 or $5 or $10 gifts add up.

Those working for charity reform have no desire to dry up this well. "We don't want to stop people from giving," says Marilyn Kolb of the Council of Better Business Bureaus' Philanthropic Advisory Dept. "But we want to see the money go to the right place for the right reason."

Hole record set

Here's a new world's record you won't find in your current Guiness:

According to Oil & Gas Journal, the world's deepest hole, a gas well, has been drilled in Washita County, Okla. Lone Star Producing Co.'s 1 Bertha Rogers bottomed at 31,441 feet. Lone Star also drilled what was formerly the world's deepest hole at 30,050 feet.

Cost of the record hole is reported to be around $5 million — or a little under $160 a foot.

Described as a small gasser, 1 Bertha Rogers initially tested at four million cubic feet a day in July. But since then, says the company, the well has lost pressure.

Maybe the Chinese are siphoning it off at the other end.

Voters willing to 'bite the bullet'

Perhaps the time has come for the proverbial "spade" to be called just as it really appears to be. First, there is no doubt that our school district could benefit from a successful tax override. Yet, the tax burdened citizens of this community must have faith in where this money is to go and how it is to be used.

The scars still remain from the bitter busing battles of a few years ago when certain Board members made it obvious that they cared little for the wishes of the people. The people also recall that the Associated Pomona Teachers (verbally, though not via the majority) became politically involved and directed a myriad of jibes at a segment of the community in an effort to support a minority view of certain Board members.

More recently, the public at large has seen the Board attempt to circumvent the elective process via "back door" methods in appointing another member to a vacant seat, wherein they would be certain of support as opposed to elected critical commentary and a watchful eye. While I cannot blame the majority of the Board for seeking a member intent upon supporting their tactics, I also cannot now blame the voters for scrutinizing, most carefully, anything further the majority might suggest. I also cannot blame the public for viewing APT endorsement as a "kiss of death" for any proposal which would alter the present exorbitant tax structure, change in Board configuration (unless for the better) or affect the educational concepts desired in this community.

It also seems questionable when a very well compensated Superintendent of Schools orders, on City time, scheduled employes (also on City time) to forcibly attend meetings wherein he advised that "unless they work to get this override passed, they will be fired." This is coercion and duress in the first degree, though it appears to have become standard procedure in our City.

The voters of our city are not unreasonable. They desire to have faith and trust in our Board, as well as other elected officials. They are most willing to "bite the bullet" to furnish much needed supplies and facilities. Still, it appears up to our Board to prove that such faith and trust is deserved. To date, this has not, in large degree, been forthcoming.

While some of my words will not be well received, I think the record of rejection of past overrides speaks for itself. — Dr. T. E. O'Donohue, Pomona.

JACK ANDERSON

Senator sponsors bill, gets big loan

WASHINGTON — Oklahoma's soft-spoken Sen. Henry Bellmon, a Republican and farmer, in that order, pushed hard to get a federal land bank bill through the Senate. Then he snapped up a whopping $475,000 loan under the legislation which he had helped pass.

On the federal land bank's board of directors is H. C. Hitch, whom the senator supported for his bank job. The bank quickly approved the loan at rates lower than Bellmon would have had to pay a commercial lender.

The loan was recommended by an old friend and neighbor, Lin Trueblood, who lives less than six miles from the senator. Trueblood happens to be the tri-county director of the federal land bank.

Bellmon and both his friends, in long talks, insisted that it was all on the up-and-up and that the senator got no more consideration than any other farmer in the Oklahoma cattle and wheat country.

The story began in 1971 in the Senate Agriculture Committee, where Bellmon is a respected member. At issue was a bill to let federal land banks raise the permissible mortgages on farm land from 65 to 85 per cent of the value of the land.

Bellmon not only was one of the sponsors of the bill, but more specifically, he personally helped push it through the committee. "I sure worked for it," he acknowledged candidly.

Subsequently, Bellmon tried to get a private loan on some of his land holdings. But money was tight, so he turned to the federal land bank.

Last June 17, the senator and his wife were granted a $475,000 loan, according to records of the federal land bank in Wichita, on 1,319 acres in Oklahoma. The Bellmons are paying a low 8.5 per cent interest, far less than they would be charged by a commercial bank even if such a huge loan were available.

Trueblood, who contributed $150 to Bellmon's current Senate campaign, sees nothing wrong with his approving the loan. It got the final approval, he pointed out, of the parent bank in Wichita.

Hitch, who contributed $4,000 to Bellmon's campaign, said Bellmon had little, if anything, to do with his appointment as a land bank director. In any case, Hitch insisted he never knew Bellmon's loan had gone through the land bank. It is the nature of bank employes, of course, to give favorable decisions on loans for the friends of directors.

The senator insisted there was "no connection" between the loan and his friendships. "That's as clean a loan as you can find," he said.

THE KOJAK CAPER: Top federal drug officials are in an absolute tizzy over a recent episode of the popular "Kojak' TV series.

Kojak is a tough New York cop, played by actor Telly Savalas. In the September 29 episode, entitled "A Very Deadly Game," he was in hot pursuit of a police killer and narcotics dealer.

He wanted to move in on the police killer, but the federal drug agents wanted the killer to lead them to the narcotics kingpin.

The plot, according to discomfited drug officials, showed federal narcotics agents in a bad light. The New York cops shared their information with the "feddie-weddies," as Kojak called them, but the feds wouldn't cooperate with Kojak.

Kojak got his man by locking the head fed in a room while he arrested the pusher-killer. In the process, the feds were made to look petty and ineffective.

Two days before the show was aired across the nation, the Drug Enforcement Administration's public information chief, Vince Promuto, was tipped off that the episode would be "detrimental" to the agency's image.

He was told that an ex-narcotics agent served as an adviser on the show. Promuto made several inquiries, discovered no adviser existed and dropped the matter. "They have a right to put on whatever they want," he told us.

The show's top writer, Gene Carney, explained that the plot "was invented" to give the show a solid "antagonist situation." The story was not based on "any specific incident" and "was not intended" to harm the reputation of the federal agents, he said.

PORK PROJECT: Sen. James Buckley, C-R-N.Y., once amazed fellow senators in a closed-door meeting by hassling them on the money they waste on pork barrel projects. Buckley was slapped down by his seniors, but refused to give up.

Now, it appears he will win a battle to get a three-man board appointed to review pork barrel deals before they get into the hands of the Army Corps of Engineers. His bill would open up the pork barrel and, perhaps, even save a few hundred millions of dollars.

PAUL HARVEY

Equal justice never was

The cry persists that there is "no equal justice." Those who want to lynch the former President and intimidate his successor are protesting that there is "no equal justice! Of course not; there never was. Most of us could beat a drunk-driving rap with a fine.

But a preacher caught driving drunk gets put in a sort of "solitary confinement" for the rest of his life. That's not "equal," yet perhaps it is as it should be.

If President Ford ever seriously considered a blanket pardon for everybody involved in Watergate, I'm glad he has changed his mind about that.

Superficially that might sound like "equal justice," but it would not be. The Cubans arrested for the actual burglary thought they were working for our CIA against Castro. They were victims of the plot, not perpetrators. For that blind patriotism they have paid enough.

E. Howard Hunt — whose wife has died as an indirect consequence of Watergate — perhaps he has paid too much. The pardon power vested in our President is predicated on the presumption that the President may consider extenuating circumstances which the courts, rigidly bound by the letter of the law, cannot consider.

Necessarily, any such consideration would have to be on a case-by-case individual basis. The special circumstances in the pardon of Richard Nixon were well stated by Rep. John Rhodes (R-Ariz.). He cited the "special consequences that a fallen President must bear" and the fact that an ex-President's fate is directly connected with the well-being of the republic.

These considerations do not necessarily apply to other Watergate defendants. We must be careful that we do not allow ourselves to be sloganized into a position which shackles justice.

As the word "freedom" has been misused to justify license, so the phrase "equal justice" is being used now to distort our evaluation of justice.

The TV networks have been seeking out the man-on-the-street who protests, "If a President can get away with burglary, why can't I?" Nixon did not "get away" with anything. It is beyond the comprehension of most the degree to which the deposed President and his family have suffered and will continue to suffer.

"But," the protester protests, "how can I defend the American system to my children when they see the little people punished and the high and mighty go free?"

I would try to help them understand that the strength of our Americanism is not in its rigidity — never was — but in its adaptability to allow for combining compassion with the letter of the law so that it comes out fairly fair.

The homefront is worse than war

WASHINGTON — North Vietnam is failing in its attempt to bring recovery to its war-torn economy while continuing a military buildup and aggressive skirmishes in the South.

The three-year economic plan has been scrapped. The State Planning Commission, the Central Agricultural Commission and the Ministry of Engineering and Metallurgy (key to heavy industrial development) have been reshuffled; their chiefs and primary deputies have been fired. Deputy premiers, one from the Politburo, have taken their jobs.

North Vietnam's political leaders have blamed the poor management of the ousted men for the North's bitter economic problems. What is obvious, however, is that the strain of Hanoi's military activities in South Vietnam, combined with the North's reconstruction problems, are more than can be handled by the inherently inefficient and unskilled bureaucracy of the North, compounded by domestic Politburo political objectives inimical to economic growth.

Tens of thousands of young people are being transferred from the heavily-populated delta to the mountain and foothill regions of the North in a desperate attempt to boost output. For in spite of the reclamation programs of the past decade, the total land under cultivation in North Vietnam has declined by 5 to 7 per cent.

Though large investments and a great deal of forced labor have been poured into state farms, the current belief is that workers on these projects are cultivating only a fifth of the land allotted. Productivity is currently deteriorating.

A bare third of the 30,000 middle school graduates in agricultural science are serving in agriculture — at least on the farms. Most have little impact. According to reports from Hong Kong, few of these young men and women have been assigned to jobs for which they were trained. News from the field indicates most are distrusted by farm managers. The newcomers, these men say, don't have the right attitude. There are frequent press reports of a lack of socialist spirit.

There are also repeated reports of farmers encroaching with their private plots on the collective rice fields and of men finding ways to spend less than the required hours on communal land. One dispatch states that 1-10th of the cooperative land in some districts is under private cultivation.

Transportation is said to be in a state of "chronic disease."

Though the Soviet Union and China pour increasing amounts of economic assistance into North Vietnam, this aid does not seem to be turning the tide. According to Europeans in close touch with the situation, the Politburo planners do not know how to efficiently use these resources and much is being wasted.

What this means is that South Vietnam may be able to struggle through for the foreseeable future despite its own considerable political and economic problems and despite the Senate and House slash in President Ford's assistance proposals.

What the South needs more than anything else these days is expert technical advice, mainly in practical economics and particularly in small-scale farm and business operations. For Hanoi's soldiers will most certainly destroy major factories and large-scale land development programs — through continued disruption and discouragement of major foreign investment, except, perhaps in offshore oil.

Heartline: My mother lost her Medicare card. Who is our carrier in Florida so I can write and get it replaced? — L.H.

Answer: To get a Medicare card replaced, you do not contact your Medicare carrier. They are issued by the Social Security administration. Contact your local Social Security office.

Heartline: I'm drawing Workmen's Compensation. I will retire in two months. Can I have both Workmen's Compensation and Social Security? I have waited until I am 65 to retire. — I.D.

Answer: We are sorry, but at age 65, Workmen's Compensation stops.

Heartline: The doctor said mother should come home from the hospital, but I want her to stay. She still is entitled to more days from Medicare. Can you help? — E.Y.

Answer: The doctor decides who should be in the hospital and who is able to come home. If you can't take care of your mother, find out about an extended care facility.

Heartline: My mother is on SSI (Supplemental Security Income). She is moving into a new apartment. I've heard that SSI will pay or at least help pay for her moving. — P.O.

Answer: No. SSI does not pay or help pay for moving.

Heartline: Can I have Champva from the VA and Medicare both? I have worked under Social Security. — H.C.

Answer: No. If you are eligible for Medicare, you cannot receive Champva benefits.

ANN LANDERS

Wife in a quandry trying to find out if husband is AC, DC or both

Dear Ann Landers: I can't possibly talk to anyone about this problem and when I tell you what it is you will understand why.

I am 27 and was divorced in 1972. My husband was an older man and I discovered too late he was an alcoholic. He refused to get help. I confess I married him because I had an out-of-wedlock son who needed a father, and this man appeared to like the boy.

In January I married a charmer, 35, movie-star handsome, who had never been married. Ed and I went together only a few months but I was sure he would be the perfect husband and father.

Now I need to know how a woman can tell if her husband is bisexual. Before we were married Ed was a very good lover, but these past five months he has barely touched me. I've asked him to discuss his declining interest in sex and he says he still loves me but he just doesn't feel like it.

Four nights last week Ed was out with "the boys." He works in a field I won't name, but most of them are homosexuals.

How can I tell for sure? Is this grounds for divorce? — Alone Alot

Dear Alone: It's unlikely you'll be able to tell for sure, but from your letter I suspect your hunch is correct.

These days, in most states, divorces are granted for "incompatability" and "irreconcilable differences." I'd say you have both.

Dear Ann Landers: I was divorced a few months ago and my ex-husband is driving me nutty. He has the key to the house and he gives me only part of my alimony and child support because he says I am not competent to handle that much money.

The man walks in on us whenever he feels like it. He rummages around in my closets and drawers looking for telephone messages, letters — whatever. He makes a general search and questions the children as to what's going on.

What burns me up is that he is always making vulgar passes and obscene remarks. He thinks that because he pays alimony he is entitled to the privileges of a husband. The last time he tried to drag me into the bedroom I gave him a black eye.

The court granted him visiting privileges (to see the children) on Saturdays and Sundays, but he spends those two days harassing me and paying no attention to them.

I've told him I don't want him around but it does no good. Will you please tell me what to do about this pest so I can lead a normal life? — A Married Divorcee

Dear M: Go to your lawyer and follow his instructions. There are several things you can do. First, you can have the locks on the doors changed. Second, deliver the kids to HIM and make it clear that he is not to set foot in your home. The law will protect you on this one. If he shows up, he is in violation and you can call the police.

The lawyer can demand that he give you the child support and alimony, in total. If he fails to do so, he is again in trouble with the law.

You have the right to be left alone, and if you put up with any more of his shenanigans, you subconsciously enjoy it.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

For Wednesday, Oct. 16

AIRES (March 21-April 19) You will eventually benefit in some manner from confidential information that will be given you now. Secrecy is essential for the present.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your judgment is especially keen today. Act on your decisions. It isn't likely you'll overlook anything relevant in weighing evidence.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're fortunate in coping with matters that can advance or enhance your work or career.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There's something much larger and beneficial behind what will appear to be a moderate gesture of goodwill from a friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're very much on the mind of one with whom you have strong emotional ties. This person will shortly act generously toward you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your larger ideas have more chance of being successful than your lesser ones do. Paint your canvas with bold strokes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is one of those days when things of a material nature are likely to be handed to you without need for you to put out much effort.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're lucky now, provided you stick with your own ideas and not those of another. Proceed as your logic dictates.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Those reliable little insights you've learned to depend upon will be extremely accurate today. Blend intuition with reason for guidance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) To influence a group, single out the few key people and work in close accord with them rather than with the majority.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're still in a fortunate cycle where your occupation is concerned. Don't let anything rewarding slip through by being indifferent.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In your dealings now keep the broader picture before you. The smaller pieces will fall into place once the general outline is perceived.

So he left happy--get the picture?

By ERMA BOMBECK

I addressed myself to a pair of feet waving like a flag from the clothes hamper.

"What are you looking for?" I asked.

"My brown corduroys," said my son.

"They're dirty."

"I know, but Dan is wearing his today. Where's my shirt?"

"The clean ones are in your closet."

"I want the T-shirt I tie-dyed in art class."

"I've been dusting the piano with it."

"Mom! C'mon, I'm going to be late."

"Why can't you wear a clean one?"

"Dan is going to wear his tie-dye."

"Your hair looks funny. Can't you do something with that cowlick?"

"I'll see if Dan wears his . . . if not, I'll take it off. Where are my shoes?"

"Where are they usually?"

He thought a moment, "In the bathroom, under the bed, on the porch, in the car, in my locker, the bike basket, the school bus, the hall closet, the playground, the drugstore, or Dan's house."

"Wear your good ones."

"They got dust on them. You trying to make me look bad?"

"Did you brush your teeth?"

"No, Dan's not brushing his."

"If I were Dan's mother, I'd lock him up on trash day for his own safety."

"I think Dan looks neat."

"Wait a minute, let me take a look at you," I said. "What's that pink around your mouth?"

"Kool-Ade."

"I didn't know you had Kool-Ade for breakfast."

"I didn't."

"Out!" I said, ordering him back to the bathroom.

Minutes later he stood proudly before me, the picture of poverty in a pair of wrinkled corduroys, a tacky T-Shirt, hair that looked like an unmade bed, and a pair of gym shoes with so many knots I thought he was wearing macrame.

"Do you have any idea how you look?" I asked tiredly.

"I knew you'd be pleased," he said. "Today we have our class pictures taken."

THE DOCTOR COMMENTS

Kidney ill needs special treatment

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a middle-aged woman and have bilateral polycystic renal disease. I am being treated by a very competent nephrologist. I have had several side effects, such as anemia, gout, diabetic symptoms, swelling of the feet, itchy skin, leg cramps and nausea with vomiting. I might say this is an inherited condition as several in my family have had the same complaint.

At the present time I am on a salt-free diet and taking, among other things, four sodium bicarbonate tablets daily, Zyloprim to control the gout, plus iron and liver for my blood.

Over a period of time I have lost over 80 pounds (from over 200 pounds down to about 120 pounds). I am getting along quite well at the moment, but can you explain to me why a salt-free diet and limited potassium and protein and the sodium bicarbonate?

DEAR READER — For the benefit of our other readers, polycystic kidney disease is a defect that a person is born with. There are many (poly) cysts formed in the kidney causing it to be enlarged, and sometimes affecting its function. How much of the normal kidney tissue is replaced with cysts determines how well the kidneys function.

Three main complications of polycystic kidney disease are bleeding, high blood pressure and kidney failure. Most of your treatment is directed toward the latter. Since your kidneys are not working in an optimal fashion your doctor is wisely helping them.

When the kidneys are damaged they may not be able to eliminate salt normally. In that case salt has to be eliminated from the diet to prevent the accumulation of salt in the body which would cause accumulation of water and lead to many severe problems.

The same applies to potassium. The kidneys normally eliminate any potassium your body doesn't need. When they are unable to do this, the excess accumulation of potassium can upset the body chemistry and even affect the heart. So, I am not surprised that your potassium and the foods rich in potassium are limited. Individuals taking water pills have the opposite problems. The flushing out of the water often washes out too much potassium which can be bad also.

One of the main functions of the kidneys is to eliminate urea, hence the name urine. Urea is formed from the ammonia or nitrogen-containing part of amino acids. Protein consists of combinations of amino acids. If you eat a lot of excess protein, your kidneys have to eliminate more urea. When your kidneys are not "up-to-snuff" you need to eliminate this problem to prevent the accumulation of urea in the blood. In large amounts it can lead to "uremic poisoning."

The kidneys also play a role in balancing the chemistry of your body, between being too acid or too alkaline. This is very important for normal function. I presume that the sodium bicarbonate is part of this general picture in your particular case.

So, all that is being done for you is quite logical and necessary. Keep in mind that if you reach a point where kidney function is completely unsatisfactory you can get help from artificial kidney devices, and finally, in proper circumstances, kidney transplants have proved to be rather successful.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on hiatal hernia, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Hiatal Hernia" booklet.

Battle fatigue from fighting inflation

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Diary of an inflation fighter:

Monday —I am walking along, minding my business, when —wham! bam! —my attention is harpooned by a large poster in an office window.

A bigger-than-life likeness of President Ford dressed in a red, white and blue suit is pointing a figure at me. "Uncle Jerry Wants You!" the caption says.

Curiosity drives me inside where a man behind the desk explains that the office is a recruiting station for inflation fighters.

"We're looking for volunteers," he says. "Red-blooded Americans willing to curb oil imports by car pooling, taking the bus, riding bikes or just plain walking."

He makes it sound so attractive I sign up for the duration.

Tuesday —Basic training begins today. I go to the supply room and draw an Inflation Fighter's Survival Kit. It includes a pair of footsie jamjams that withstand temperatures down to 68 degrees.

I am eager to see action but my tough old drill instructor says he wouldn't think of sending a raw, green recruit into combat without proper indoctrination.

"You wouldn't last 10 minutes, kid," he growls. "The first time you dialed down your thermostat you'd get terminal goosebumps."

Wednesday —We spend the day on the thermostat range learning the techniques of dialing down. After a few dry runs, I hit the 68-degree mark right on the nose. This is good enough for an "Expert" rating.

Thursday —I go out on my first patrol. My orders are to walk to the corner grocery for a quart of milk. I have never done anything like this without an automobile.

My knees are quaking but I make it. Upon my return, I am awarded the bronze WIN button with oak leaf cluster.

Friday —I flew 25 missions in WWII but nothing in that experience prepared me for car-pooling.

For five straight days now my car pool has been under steady, intensive argument over whether Kilmer or Jurgensen should start as quarterback. The pressure is getting to me.

Saturday —I went over the hill this morning. It was raining and the bus was late and I didn't have an umbrella and I guess I cracked under the strain.

Anyway, the next thing I knew I was in my car heading for the Canadian border. And I wasn't keeping the speedometer at 55.

Sunday —I hear on the underground radio that President Ford may offer some sort of conditional amnesty to AWOL inflation fighters.

If it involves riding a bicycle to work, I'm seeking asylum in Sweden.

It's 'money man' vs. 'forgotten man'

OAKLAND (UPI) — Jim "Catfish" Hunter, Oakland's "money man," faces Al Downing, the Los Angeles Dodgers' "forgotten man," today in the third game of the all California World Series with the defending World Champion A's 7-5 favorites.

Hunter is unbeaten in three World Series decisions over the last two seasons and was the man who nailed down the final out in Oakland's 3-2 victory Saturday in the opening game of the 1974 classic.

Downing, who lost World Series decisions with the New York Yankees in 1963 and 1964, was the last starter on a solid Los Angeles pitching staff this past season but after a six-week rest, pitched a one-hitter against San Francisco for a key victory down the pennant stretch drive.

"You never quite get used to being calm when it comes to pitching in the World Series," said Hunter, winner of KNBC (4) & KTTV (11), 5:30 p.m.

25 games in 1974 and a leading candidate for American League Cy Young Award honors. "But once the game gets started, I expect I'll be able to shut everything else off and concentrate on pitching."

Downing, winner of only five of 11 decisions for Los Angeles this year, said the fact he pitched previously in World Series competition should help but it really doesn't mean that much.

"Sure the pressure will be there," said the 33-year-old veteran left-hander, "and anyone who says it won't doesn't know what it's all about. In my case I have to tell myself to stop worrying about going a set number of innings and just concentrate on each batter as he comes up."

Since pitching is the name of the game in a World Series, the edge, on paper, today is with the A's, mostly because Hunter is pitching and secondly because the club is back on its home field for the next three games.

The action gets under way at 5:30 p.m. PDT with another sellout enroute to what may wind up as the richest World Series of all time. Both the first and second games in Los Angeles set attendance marks with 55,000 plus crowds and in Oakland they are expecting 49,000 plus sellouts today, Wednesday and Thursday.

With Hunter pitching for the A's, Dodger Manager Walter Alston has juggled his lineup a bit to compensate. He has benched catcher Steve Yeager and put Joe Ferguson behind the plate with Willie Crawford, a left-handed batter, taking over Ferguson's place in right field.

The A's will go with the same lineup as in the first two games except for a possible switch of Bert Campaneris and Billy North. North was Oakland's leadoff man throughout most of the season with Campaneris, a good hit-and-run man, batting behind him. However, in the first two series games in Los Angeles Campaneris was the leadoff batter.

"I may swap them around," said A's Manager Alvin Dark, "but I won't make up my mind for sure until just before the start of the third game. I think with Campy hitting second we have a better chance to play our kind of game."

Alston said he has all the confidence in the world in Downing but won't hesitate to take him out at the first sign of trouble. With the series tied at one victory each, today's game is pivotal.

"I want Downing to go as well as he can for as long as he can," said Alston. "Depending on the game situation I might bring Mike Marshall in as early as the fifth. But I wouldn't want him that early if we are behind."

The Dodgers need today's game more than the A's because, in effect, they are down to two solid pitchers—Andy Messersmith, the opening game loser, and Don Sutton, the second game winner.

For the fourth game Wednesday, the A's will come back with Ken Holtzman, who went out after 4 1-3 innings of the first game and wasn't involved in the decision, while the Dodgers will counter with Messersmith.

The Dodgers were their usual calm and collected selves during a short twilight workout Monday while the A's had their daily sideshow. This latest one involved slugger Reggie Jackson, who took exception to a magazine story and minced no words in telling off the author— the highly respected Murray Olderman of NEA.

It was a loud and profane show with Reggie doing all the talking. While it had little to do with the proceedings at hand, it did provide newsmen covering the series an extra tidbit of a series already marred by an A's clubhouse fight and the usual number of complaints against management.

Oh no! The SAL is at it again

Here we go again.

When the high school football season started this year, most fans were hoping the San Antonio League would improve over last year. The league was represented by two teams which finished the season with 5-5 and 6-4 records.

Needless to say, both teams (Pomona and Chino) were eliminated in the first round of the CIF playoffs.

But there was a hint of optimism that this year will be better.

If last weekend is any indication, the SAL is in for another rotten year.

In three of the four games during the two-day weekend, the favorite was upset. Only Claremont High was able to maintain its winning ways to take sole possession of first place.

What has really handcuffed SAL handicappers is that Claremont came into league play with an 0-2 record, while the league's two last-place teams (Chino and Montclair) were unbeaten coming into SAL competition. They have lost their first two games in the SAL.

It's hard for anybody to get excited about any of the teams which participate in a league so "down."

Granted, there is a possibility of the league being really tough since a couple of the teams fared better in non league play than they did in league action. But chances are better that it's just because the teams are so inconsistent.

The only way the league will be able to right itself would be by making impressive performances in the post-season CIF playoffs, which will be accepting at least two teams from every league beginning this year.

★ ★ ★

Hacienda League fans may be able to maintain their sanity this year, which SAL fans will have trouble doing.

Bonita High is still going strong and is now the only undefeated team in the valley.

Walnut has come on strong in league play also, winning its two league games after dropping both non-league outings.

NEW A.D.: Pomona High has a new athletic director this year, as baseball coach Jay Cravens has taken the helm. Former A.D. Gene Abernathy resigned the post late last year for personal reasons.

BASKETBALL FROLICS: The Pomona High Basketball Boosters Club is sponsoring a basketball game at the school tonight at 7 p.m. between faculty members and representatives of the Pomona Police Department. Tickets are 50 cents and may be purchased at the school student store and at Palomares and Emerson junior high offices. Proceeds will be used to fund a junior varsity tournament scheduled to begin in December between teams of eight valley schools, according to club president John Wieman.

BANQUET TIME: The Garey High varsity football team and its parents will host a "Welcome to Garey" dessert banquet for the new freshmen and sophomore football and cross country teams and their parents Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Garey cafeteria.

CLOE'S LINES: Here are my predicted point spreads for this weekend's valley high school action: Ganesha by 1 over Chino, Damien by 11 over Pomona, Upland by 3 over Montclair, Bonita by 13 over Ontario, Sierra Vista by 12 over San Dimas, Royal Oak by 5 over Walnut, Azusa by 7 over Nogales, Gladstone by 9 over Alta Loma, Eisenhower by 8 over Chaffey, Webb by 12 over Aquinas, Ontario Christian by 14 over Brethren, Heritage Christian by 20 over American Christian, Claremont by 10 over Garey, Rowland by 18 over Charter Oak, Big Bear by 24 over La Verne Lutheran.

Giants trade Sosa; Bonds next on list?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants traded their best reliever and a backup receiver to get "the best young catcher in baseball."

At least that is what Giants Vice President Jerry Donovan called Marc Hill of St. Louis, who was obtained Monday in a swap for Elias Sosa and Ken Rudolph.

Hill, 22, hit .278 and had 14 homers while driving in 58 runs at Tulsa of the American Association last season. He hit .238 in a brief stint with the Cardinals. The Giant catching corps of Dave Rader, John Boccabella and Rudolph had only one homer of the Giants' total of 93, their lowest team output in 30 years.

The deal apparently was the climax to a week of rumors about impending Giants swaps —or was it?

For no sooner was the deal completed when Donovan added fuel to the hot rumor that outfielder Bobby Bonds could be wearing a different uniform next season.

"We haven't made any commitment to Bobby that he'll stay," Donovan said delicately.

But this was quite a switch from owner Horace Stoneham's declaration last summer that Bonds would stay in San Francisco no matter what.

Bonds slumped to a .256 average with 21 homers and 71 rbi's this year after batting .283 with 39 homers and 96 rbi's in 1973.

The Cardinals also completed a minor league deal with the Giants, acquiring pitcher Jim Willoughby from Phoenix of the PCL and assigning him to Tulsa. The Cards gave up infielder Tom Heintzelman, who is being shifted from Tulsa to the Giants.

Saints waive 'Earl the pearl'

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Wide receiver Earl McCullough, former NFL Rookie of the Year, has been cut by the New Orleans Saints and replaced by a castoff from the Pittsburgh Steelers.

McCullough, a seven-year veteran from Southern California, played his first six seasons with the Detroit Lions before he was cut this summer and claimed by the Saints.

'Al' seeks first series win

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In his first World Series start in 1963, Al Downing faced the Los Angeles Dodgers and Johnny Podres.

In the '64 Series, Downing was matched against the St. Louis Cardinals and Ray Sadecki.

Both times, as a member of the New York Yankees, the southpaw from Trenton, N.J., was a loser; 4-1 in the second game of the '63 Series and 4-3 in game No. 4 in '64.

Used sparingly this season, Downing will face a rough assignment when he goes for the Dodgers in the third game of the World Series Tuesday night at Oakland. His opponent is 25-game winner Jim "Catfish" Hunter.

"Maybe I'm not as fast," he said Sunday after the Dodgers evened the Series at 1-1 with a 3-2 victory here, "but I know I'm a better pitcher than I was then. I've learned a lot in the last 10 years."

Downing, 33, was 5-6 with a 3.67 ERA during the regular season. He did not make a start in the Dodgers' 3-1 National League playoffs' victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

He appeared in just 21 games this season and made only 16 starts.

"What I've done up to now won't mean a thing," said Downing when asked about his mediocre year. "I've never questioned my ability to start."

Walter Alston is calling on experience over youth. Alston also has left-handers Doug Rau (25) and Geoff Zahn (27) available. Rau, a 13-game winner, was the victim in a 7-0 Pirates' shellacking last Tuesday.

"My experience (14 years in the big leagues) will help but it has been 10 years since I pitched in the World Series," Downing stated. "I expect I'll be a bit nervous Tuesday night.

"Catfish is a terrific pitcher. If I'm on my game, it figures to be low scoring. Oakland is the type of team which capitalizes on their opponents' mistakes.

"It's going to be my job to stay ahead of the count. If I do, I feel I should be able to pitch a good game.

"It's going to be a lot colder, damper and more windy up there. That might be the biggest thing against our ball club."

Downing is a former A himself. The Yankees traded him to Oakland after the 1969 season and he later was shipped to Milwaukee in a trade in 1970.

The Dodgers then acquired him for Andy Kosco and he promptly won 20 games for them in '71.

Anthony Davis Player of Week

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — USC's Anthony Davis, who rushed for 194 yards in little more than two quarters of play against Washington State, Monday was named the Pacific-8 Conference's Offensive Player of the Week.

Chris routs Miss Durr at Sports Arena

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., seeded No. 1, used her powerful ground stroke to overwhelm Francoise Durr of France, 6-2, 6-2, Monday night in first round play of the $100,000 Virginia Slims Championship Tennis Tournament at the Sports Arena.

The victory assured the 19-year-old Miss Evert of earning enough to boost her total earnings for the 1974 season past the $100,000 mark, the highest for a woman tennis player this year.

Rosemary Casals of San Francisco outlasted Karen Krantzcke of Australia in a hard fought match, 6-4, 7-5. Lesley Hunt of Australia downed Marcie Louie of San Francisco 6-4, 6-0.

Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., and Evonne Goolagong of Australia, seeded Nos. 2 and 3, will play feature matches tonight. Miss Goolagong will meet Valerie Ziegenfuss and Mrs. King will face Betty Stove of the Netherlands.

Miss Durr failed in her attempt to out-volley Miss Evert. Miss Evert probably is the most consistent player with her ground strokes from the baseline.

She controlled the match almost from the start. She broke Miss Durr's serve in the second and the eighth games to score an easy victory in the first set.

Miss Evert, engaged to Jimmy Connors, the world's No. 1 ranked male player, scored three service breaks in the second set for another easy victory. She lost her serve only once, in the third game of the second set, en route to winning her 51st match against only four losses this year.

Storm players won't boycott

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Portland Storm General Manager Ron Mix and player representative Sam Silas said Monday that a player boycott of Wednesday's game with Hawaii was nonsense, but admitted Portland owners have been slow with weekly paychecks.

"When we (the Storm players) met for a few seconds during the weekend to talk about this," Silas said, "none of the players were either alarmed or surprised. But a boycott we never discussed. We found no unsettled members of the team."

Mix said the Storm has not paid the players for last week's game against Birmingham, and that the previous week's checks were post-dated to last Saturday.

"We are hopeful that additional money will be injected by owner Bob Harris by Wednesday or Thursday of this week," he said. "We don't feel we have missed a pay period and the players understand this."

Mix said Harris, a London, Ont., construction firm owner, was caught short by lower than expected revenues from Storm attendence, but is liquidating some of his assets to inject more money into the WFL franchise.

Pats' Stingley out with break

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Darryl Stingley, the New England Patriots' standout receiver, suffered a broken left arm in Sunday's 24-0 rout of the New York Jets, doctors reported Monday after taking X rays.

Stingley definitely will miss next week's game and his future status was in doubt, a team official said. The injury was only one of several suffered by members of the unbeaten Patriots.

UCLA once sought Button

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Jeff Button told Southern California Football Writers Monday how he once was recruited by UCLA then dropped like a hot potato.

Button,, the 5-9, 190-pound middle guard on the La Verne College football team, was named College Division Player of the Week. In the Leopard's 10-0 upset of Azusa Pacific Saturday, Button was credited with 10 tackles including two quarterback sacks and three assists on sacks.

In high school, Button was a 5-6, 150-pound offensive lineman for Ganesha High School.

"We had a big game coming up with Bonita and Alan Carter," related Button. "We had Bobby Farrell in our backfield and he was interviewed for a newspaper story and said a lot of nice things about the offensive line."

"I got a form card from UCLA and filled it out," Button continued. "They must have thought I said 6-5 and 250 pounds. I got a letter from coach (Tonny) Prothro saying how interested he was in having me play at UCLA.

"One day I got a note to leave class because there was someone to see me. I went into a room and sat down. Two fellows came in, but never spoke to me. Then someone came in and said it was okay to return to class.

"I guess one or both of the fellows were from UCLA," Button grinned. "They probably came to check out if I really was only 5-6 and 150 pounds.

"I was rejected without ever seeing or talking with anybody," he concluded.

Tony Adams of the Sun was named pro player of the week. USC's Anthony Davis won university honors.

Adams, the Sun signal caller completed 16 of 31 passes for 223 yards and one interception as the Sun defeated Shreveport, 25-23.

Davis rushed for 194 yards on 26 carries and scored two touchdowns.

Quoting the coaches:

ROLAND ORTMAYER, LA VERNE — Jeff (Button) is a wild man on the field, but very quiet and reserved off it. We're happy to have the win over PAC and hope we're as happy after we play Cal Lutheran this week."

DICK VERMEIL, UCLA — "Before the Stanford game I said that if we were going to win, we'd have to get seven points any time we got inside the 10-yard line and three points anytime inside the 30. We missed a touchdown on a third and two and also missed a field goal after reaching the 15, I'm disappointed that we didn't win but grateful for the players that we didn't lose.

"There was a mixup in the officiating and we lost time. We had an injured player and the official asked me if I wanted a time out. I had already told John (Sciarra) what I wanted and I thought the clock would be stopped anyway because of the injury. We weren't given the time out but we were charged with one."

JOHN HERMANN, CSLA A.D. — We're 4-0 and are averaging 30 points a game. We've been a big play team with most of our 18 touchdowns coming from 30 yards out. We don't feel we have played a really good offensive game yet."

JOHN WATKINS, CAL POLY PUBLICIST—"We feel Friday's game with CSLA is a championship game. If we lose we fall 1½ games back. We played our worst offensive game against SLO. We only got across the 50-yard line four times and had passes intercepted the first three times we got the ball."

MIKE WILSON, WSU PUBLICIST — "We feel USC has put it together now after beating us 54-7. Our scheduled has included four teams that had one loss or less when we played them, Kansas, Illinois, Ohio St. and USC. We'll start a different quarterback against UCLA this week, John Hopkins, a sophomore from Downey."

JACK TEELE, RAMS — "Our defensive team is playing better after five games this year than it was a year ago. We've held the opposition to 1077 yards compared to 1182 a year ago; have 21 quarterback sacks compared to 14; and have held the opposition to 60 points compared to 90 points a year ago."

JOHN MCCASEY, 49ers — We'll start Dennis Morrison at quarterback against the Rams Sunday. He was on the cab squad last year."

College teams start practice

Ready or not, basketball is here

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

The college basketball season officially opened today when the nation's cagers began practice.

Most of the attention in Southern California is centered at UCLA where coach John Wooden is beginning a new season in unfamiliar surroundings. For the first time in eight years, the Bruins are not getting ready for a season as the defending collegiate champions.

Wooden will have a new challenge this season with only forward Dave Meyers (6-7½) back from last year's starting lineup. But the Bruins have some outstanding talent returning in center Ralph Drollinger (7-1), center-forward Richard Washington (6-9), forward Marques Johnson (6-5½), guard-forward Pete Trgovich (6-5) and guard Andre McCarter (6-2).

Up from last year's junior varsity are sophomores who saw limited varisty action. They are forward Wilbert Olinde (6-6), forward-guard Gavin Smith (6-6) and guard Jim Spillane (5-10). After being sidelined last season with a knee injury, Casey Corliss (6-6) is anxious for action.

As usual, Wooden has recruited top freshmen in center Brett Vroman (6-11½) from Provo, Utah, forward Marvin Thomas (6-7) from Jordan High in Los Angeles and guard Ray Townsend (6-2½) from San Jose.

Wooden is looking forward to his 27th season at Westwood. "This Bruin squad is the youngest and most inexperienced group we've had for many years. But I've always enjoyed working with a young group and I'm looking forward to this season with greater pleasure than I have for some time."

Across town, forward Cleve Porter (6-5) of Ganesha High, the Player of the Year in the Valley last year, is one of four highly regarded freshmen reporting to coach Bob Boyd at USC.

The Trojans look ahead to the season with optimism with 10 players returning from last year's 24-5 season.

"I feel as optimistic as I have the last four years," Boyd said. "We have the talent, experience and attitude to be outstanding."

Besides Porter, the other freshmen are forward Earl Evans (6-6) of Port Arthur, Tex., center Steve Malovic (6-10) of Phoenix, Ariz. and Norm Kelly (6-8) of South Hagerstown, Md.

Evans and Malovic were selected the Players of the Year respectively in Texas and Arizona while Kelly led his prep team to a state title.

Porter averaged 20.5 points and 18 rebounds a game in leading Ganesha to the San Antonio League championship.

"I have confidence in all the freshmen," Boyd said. "They have the ability to contribute."

However, the Trojans begin practice with a probable starting lineup of four seniors plus junior forward Bob Trowbridge. The other likely starters have Gus Williams and Biff Burrell in the backcourt plus John Lambert and Clint Chapman as the postmen.

Down in San Diego, new coach Tim Vezie is hoping for big things at San Diego State with Chaffey College transfer Bob Kovach being a big reason.

Kovach, a 6-6 product of Fontana High, was an All-State JC player at Chaffey where he averaged 23.1 points and 16.2 points a game. He also played on the National JC All-Star team which competed in the national AAU tournament in Baton Rouge, La.

Foward Steve Copp (6-7) who missed 14 games last season because of a broken foot, heads the list of eight lettermen back for the Aztecs. Among the other newcomers are forward Vince Carson (6-7), a transfer from UCLA, plus freshmen Jeff Welshans (6-6) from Katella High from Anaheim and Raul Contreras (5-11) of Huntington Beach.

Cal State Fullerton is moving into the major college level this season in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. Coach Bob Dye has a pair of former Mt. Antonio College players in 6-5 Jim Bogdanowicz, who averaged 13.5 points a game for the Titans last year, and 6-10 center Gary Nash, an All-South Coast Conference player at MSAC. Another top recruit is freshman Greg Bunch from San Bernardino's Pacific High.

Locally, Cal Poly coach Don Hogan greeted 13 players to the opening drills with only four returnees from last year's 9-17 campaign. Lettermen back are Paul Newton, Macolm Kennedy, David Kennedy and Bill Bunker.

Four junior college transfers figure to help the Broncos. They are Levi Williams (6-6) of L.A. Southwest, Bill Cantwell (6-5) of Long Beach, Denny Weisse (6-4) of Casper (Wyo.) and Joe Sills (6-2) or Arizona Western.

Other newcomers include Dick Gross (6-2), a transfer from Seattle University, Harvey Visser (6-10) of Chino High and Chaffey College, Ken Clark (6-2) of Garey High, Aaron Hopwood (6-4) of Compton and freshman Tom Ispas (5-8) of Hammond, Ind.

"I think we're a much quicker team this season but obviously smaller," Hogan said. "We should be more of a running team.

Williams, Sills, Clark and Hopwood won't be elgible until January but Poly plays only four games in December, all on the road.

Bear Bryant has surgery

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — A dermatologist said Monday he had removed cancerous spots from the nose of Alabama football coach Paul "Bear" Bryant and that there was no chance the cancer would spread.

Dr. Robert J. Bentley, the dermatologist, said such spots are caused by the sun and commonly appear on the noses of older persons who work outside extensively.

Bryant, 61, has played or coached college football for 39 years. He has been head coach and athletic director at Alabama since 1958.

"Coach Bryant had two small sun spots on his nose, which we removed in my office last week," Bentley said. "Our lab reports show there was a very small amount of malignant tissue, but we feel 98 per cent certain we removed all of it.

"And even if we didn't get it all, it is a local thing in nature and there is no chance of it spreading anywhere else ... there is nothing to get excited about."

The doctor said the operation was minor and that "we do them all the time and we never have any trouble with them.

"Medically they (the spots) are called actimic keratosis. Nearly anyone 61 years of age who has a lot of sun exposure will have 10 to 12 of these sun damage spots on his face."

The surgery was not announced until Monday. Bryant was on the sidelines for Saturday's game against Florida State here and appeared on his weekly television show Sunday. A spot-type bandage covered a dime-sized area on his nose.

Get that gal out of there

DENVER (UPI) — Denver Bronco fans, considered to be among the most highly spirited in the nation, weren't too happy about Jane Chastain's first national television appearance as sportscaster for the Bronco-New Orleans Saints game Sunday.

"Get that woman out of the announcers' booth," said one irate caller to KMGH-TV, the local CBS affiliate.

"Tell that babe to take up cooking," said another. "She sure as hell can't announce football."

KMGH officials said the station's lone switchboard operator received 800 calls during the game, all negative.

Other comments were: "We believe in women's lib up to a point, but we do not enjoy this lady commentator . . . "Football is a man's game" . . . and "That woman's inaccuracies are unbelievable."

WILL HE STILL BE SMILING TONIGHT? — A's manager Alvin Dark (R) chats with designated runner Herb Washington during A's workout. Washington says he owes Douglas, Mike Marshall something.

Herb seeks 'clean slate'

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

OAKLAND (UPI) — Herb Washington, Oakland's base-running specialist, talks and bounces around altogether differently than Muhammad Ali, so he isn't proclaiming Mike Marshall is going to fall in five, six or seven, but what he is saying is he owes him one.

"I just wanna clean the slate," says Oakland's 23-year-old Mercury man. "I am in Mike Marshall's debt. I owe him and the Dodgers one, and I'd like to pay them back. Before the Series is over, you'll see, I'll do it."

Herb Washington says all this softly, but meaningfully, with not the slightest sign of rancor or belligerence, but with the type of resolve only born of deep conviction.

It is obvious the emotional scar of being burned Sunday in Los Angeles is still there with him, and why wouldn't it be after Marshall picked him off first base in the ninth inning and made him the "goat" in a 3-2 loss to the Dodgers in the second game of the World Series.

More than 55,000 personal eyewitnesses saw Washington boo-boo in Dodger Stadium, but more embarrassing yet his "rock" was seen by what amounted to an entire nation of onlookers, thanks to national TV.

"I learned a lesson," says Washington, who still holds the world record in the 50 and 60-yard dashes and is used only as a pinch-runner, and nothing else by the A's.

For this type of specialized employment, Washington receives $40,000 a year, and there is a no-cut clause in his contract. He is the only one of his kind, having been brought into baseball and the big leagues by Oakland's imaginative owner, Charlie Finley.

Washington was still talking about what happened to him Sunday before Monday's off-day workout here. "When something like that happens," he said, " it makes three people feel badly—Mr. Finley, Alvin Dark and myself—because no other club has an exclusive pinch-runner. But when I succeed, it makes all three of us feel proud.

"All this, I mean what happened to me in Sunday's game, helps at a later time," Washington said in the philosophical vein. "It helps you grow. From track, I'm used to nothing but applause. Now I'm cast in another situation. I read all the newspapers this morning. I thought the stories were very fair. I could have been ridiculed, but I wasn't. I'm appeciative of that."

Washington, a native of Flint, Mich., where he still lives, had Mike Marshall for a teacher four years ago at Michigan State where the Dodger reliever still conducts courses. The course in which Marshall taught Washington was "Child Growth and Development," and the A's specialist recalls that Marshall was a good teacher.

"The thing about him was that he showed no partiality," says Washington. "I enjoyed the course very much, and as I recall it lasted 10 weeks."

Washington never came to bat or played in the field a single inning for the A's all this year. He did steal 28 bases in 43 tries, however, after having been tutored in the basic rudiments of baseball by former Dodger shortstop Maury Wills this past spring.

"I'd like to come back to this club next year," says Washington. "I think I will unless I do too many things like I did Sunday."

Immediately after Oakland's 3-2 loss, with the A's club house door still closed to the media, Finley came charging out of his box seat and entered his team's dressing quarters.

"Uh-oh, there goes Herb," cracked one newsman waiting outside the door, thinking back to the second game of last year's World Series when Finley also stalked into the club house and had second baseman Mike Andrews placed on the "disabled list" following a pair of costly errors against the Mets.

Washington was asked whether he thought about the Andrews episode after Marshall picked him off.

"It crossed my mind," he laughed. "Had I heard that comment—I mean 'uh-oh, there goes Herb'—I'd have said Mike (Andrews) made two errors. I made only one. I still have one left."

Is pro player real estate?

ATLANTA (UPI) — The question of whether a professional football player depreciates in value like a piece of real estate was raised in federal court Monday at the start of a complex tax case involving the Atlanta Falcons.

The suit was brought by E. Cody Laird Jr., a minority stockholder in Five Smiths Inc., the corporate owner of the Falcons, who is seeking to recover a $48,000 deduction he claimed but the Internal Revenue Service refused to allow.

Laird's deduction was part of the some $7.7 million of the total $8.5 million franchise price allocated to buying player contracts when the Atlanta club of the National Football League was set up here in 1966. The contracts were depreciated at a rate of $1.5 million a year for a little over five years.

The IRS first claimed the contracts were worth only $1 million but in the refund suit, it argued that none of the $8.5 million can be depreciated.

Tex Schramm, president and general manager of the Dallas Cowboys, was the first witness to be called in the case and was expected today to appraise the value of each of the 42 players on the original Falcon team. Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, was also expected to testify today.

The eventual outcome of the suit is expected to have a major effect on sports franchises across the country.

Schramm told Monday of the bidding war which went on between the NFL and the old American Football League before the two were merged.

"It was like an auction," he said, referring to the dollar contest for the services of University of Kentucky running back Roger Bird. He said Bird's agent kept shuttling between representatives of the Cowboys and the Oakland Raiders but Dallas dropped out when the price became "ridiculous."

Schramm said missing out on Bird was "good for us because he turned out to be a bust." He said Oakland paid Bird a $150,000 bonus and gave him a five-year no-cut contract of $150,000 but he lasted less than three years with the team.

Mike Garrett of Southern California was another hotly sought player, Schramm said, and the Los Angeles Rams were considered to have the inside track but the Kansas City Chiefs came in with a $350,000 bid and "Garrett quickly lost interest in Los Angeles."

He said also that the Falcons had a chance to acquire quarterback Bill Kilmer in the expansion draft but passed him up. Kilmer, a mainstay of the Washington Redskins, "would have been a great help to the Falcons over the years," he said.

Hoosiers don't worry Woody

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes is well aware of all the upsets and close wins so far in the 1974 football season and says Indiana won't spring a victory in Saturday's contest.

At Monday's weekly press luncheon, the Buckeyes coach noted losses by Nebraska, Florida and Texas Tech the past weekend and closer-than-expected wins by heavily favored Oklahoma, Alabama and Notre Dame.

"You see that," Hayes said, "and you realize it can happen to you."

Hayes and the top-ranked Buckeyes would appear to be ripe for upsetting Saturday when they entertain Indiana (4-1), except for the fact Hayes is already working to prevent it.

"We'll prepare for Indiana," Hayes said. "They'll want to spring an upset but damned if we'll let them."

Hayes called the Hoosiers, "an improving team," going along with his long-time theory that at mid-season, teams are either getting better or worse.

Ken Willard has surgery

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals said Monday running back Ken Willard will undergo surgery for a knee injury Tuesday.

The club said Willard could be back later this season if the surgery is successful.

Willard was the team's leading rusher when he was injured two weeks ago at San Francisco.

SPORTS NEWS IN BRIEF

OAKLAND (UPI) — Reggie Jackson, the Oakland A's superstar, lost his cool Monday during an afternoon workout and almost slugged a sports writer.

Jackson took exception to a story in a recent issue of Sport Magazine written by Murray Olderman. When he spotted Olderman on the playing field near the batting cage, Jackson let the writer know what he thought of the article.

Reggie didn't spare the language and while he was as mad as anyone has seen him, he did not put a hand on Olderman, although he came close a couple of times.

"Don't try to come around to our clubhouse," Jackson shouted with 50 or so writers standing by, "because you are not welcome."

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Southern California tailback Anthony Davis ran for 194 yards against Washington State Saturday to move into first spot in latest Pac-8 rushing statistics.

Davis gained 189 yards in the first half alone as USC flattened Washington State 54-7. He has averaged 105.8 yards per game. Chuck Muncie of Cal, who also gained over 100 yards last Saturday, is second at 95.2 and Don Reynolds of Oregon third with 81.8.

Cal's Steve Bartkowski dominates passing figures with a 196.6 average while UCLA's John Sciarra is rolling for 192.4 yards total offense to lead Alvin White of Oregon State (184.0) and Bartkowski (182.0) in that department.

Muncie has scored six touchdowns for 36 points while Howard Strickland of the Bears has lugged back kickoffs at 27 yards a clip and Steve Rivera of Cal has caught 28 passes, or eight more than anybody else in the Pac-8.

Steve Lipe of the Huskies has three interceptions while teammate Pedro Hawkins leads in punt returns with a 10.6 average and Skip Boyd of Washington is punting at a 44.2 average.

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — The manager of world heavyweight boxing champion George Foreman said Monday he stopped his fighter training Sunday and Monday because he was prematurely too ready to fight.

Foreman is training for his Oct. 30 title defense against Muhammed Ali but manager Dick Sadler pulled him out of the gym two consecutive days.

"George was getting too mean too soon," Sadler said. "He was so ready for the fight he wants to tear everybody up. With two weeks of training to go, I've got to back George up a taste so he can reach his mean peak right on time for Ali."

NEWARK, Ohio (UPI) — Earl Anthony, with a 269 on his next to last game, Monday night won the Professional Bowlers Association AMF Regional Champions Classic here and a berth in the Firestone Tournament of champions at Akron.

Anthony won three other evening matches to go along with the finisher, giving him an 11-12-1 match game record and 9,613 total pins, including a bonus, for the 42 games.

Anthony won $4,000 for his first place finish to give him a total winnings on the PBA tour this year of $81,000, just short of John Petraglia's record $85,065, and with four more tournaments to go to better that record.

Larry Laub, who had threatened earlier Monday with a game of 268, finished second and won $2,300 while Mark Roth was third and picked up a check of $2,000.

AAU hoping to pigeonhole controversial bill

Delegates practicing lobbying

WASHINGTON (UP) —The 1,100 delegates to the 87th annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) stood ready today to practice a well-known Washington sport — lobbying.

Their effort to pigeonhole a controversial Senate-approved bill to set up federal supervision over amateur sports controversies was low-keyed and informal but nevertheless an unscheduled activity on the week's agenda. At issue was a measure sponsored by Sen. James Pearson, R-Kan., which would create a quasi-governmental board to step into jurisdictional disputes which have embroiled the AAU and the rival National Collegiate Athletic Association over the years.

AAU delegates were encouraged to get word to their congressmen during the week that they oppose the legislation which has yet to emerge from House committee consideration. It seems highly unlikely that the bill will be enacted this late in an election-year session.

But in a recent newsletter, top AAU officials denounced the Pearson proposal. Executive Director Ollan Cassell charged it would render U.S. athletes ineligible for competing in international events, declaring "a vote for the bill is a vote against sending our athletes to the Olympics."

Departing AAU President David Riveness commented in the same newsletter: "We have just begun to fight. Although outpointed in round one, the fight is not over."

An influential advisor to the sports organization said the lobbying effort would feature sending delegates to Capitol Hill to pressure their legislators, but he noted that congressmen would be invited to convention hotel headquarters to hear the AAU's opposition.

At Monday's session, Cassell reported that U.S. athletes enjoyed a record-setting year in the last twelve months as far as participation in international competition was concerned.

He said the level of participation augurs well for U.S. hopes in the Pan-American games next year and the 1976 Olympics.

Under AAU auspices, more than 3,000 American athletes represented the United States abroad in 189 events while 2,615 foreign athletes came to this country to compete in 144 AAU sponsored events, Casell told the delegates.

"Opportunities to compete and gain in world class competition were greater than ever before during the past year," Cassell told the 1,500 convention delegates. "These opportunities will continue to grow through the Pan-American games in 1975 in Sao Paulo and in preparation for the Olympic games in Montreal."

Two star U.S. swimmers shared the opening session platform with Cassell. Both Melissa Belote, who won three Olympic gold medals in Munich, and John Nabor, the University of Southern California backstroker who upset East Germany's Olympic champion this year, paid tribute to the AAU for helping them gain international sports renown.

New Orleans businessmen get rights for baseball club

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Louisiana could get an established major league franchise within a year, says one of the two men assigned to bring baseball to the $163 million Louisiana Superdome.

Joseph C. Canizaro and James H. Jones, a pair of New Orleans businessmen, were granted exclusive bargaining rights Monday to represent the Superdome through next April in hopes of attracting professional baseball into the stadium.

"We think our chances are very good, indeed," Canizaro said of the possibility a franchise could move to New Orleans by next season. "We've talked to the heads of both leagues, to Bowie Kuhn, the commissioner, and to several of the baseball club owners, and we feel as though we have an excellent chance to bring baseball to New Orleans in the near future."

Canizaro said Cedric Tallis, former general manager of the Kansas City Royals expansion club, had already been hired to promote the Louisiana team and was in Oakland today "talking to baseball people."

The franchise most readily available at present would be the Baltimore Orioles, which were offered for sale last week by owner Jerry Hofberger after the team won the American League East pennant and still drew disappointing crowds.

"We have meetings scheduled with Mr. Hofberger in the near future to talk about the Baltimore team," Canizaro said.

Asked whether there would be any problems raising the $12 million to $15 million often mentioned for major league franchises today, Canizaro said, "we could come up with that amount if a proper contract were drawn up tomorrow."

The Louisiana Superdome will not be completed in time for the start of the 1975 baseball season but Canizaro said he was still hopeful a franchise could begin operating in New Orleans next year and move into the stadium when it is opened.

'Dee-fense' does it

DETROIT (UPI) — The crowd was on its feet yelling "Dee-fense" at Detroit for the first time in a long while—and for the first time in quite a spell the Lions were playing it.

"The referees told us to raise our hands up and quiet the crowd," defensive end Ernie Price of the Lions said. "We said, 'You crazy, man? We haven't heard this in a long time.'"

That third quarter goal line struggle was the turning point as Detroit came right back with a touchdown to cement its first victory, a 17-13 decision over the San Francisco 49ers.

Rookie Wilbur Jackson had just sped 64 yards to the Detroit two for his longest gain of a 91-yard night and it looked like the Lions were headed for their fifth loss. The 49ers are now 2-3 while all of Detroit's losses have come by a total of 14 points.

"I feel the crowd yelling 'defense' helped the team," Coach Rick Forzano said savoring his first pro head coaching win. "I was kind of yelling 'defense' myself on the sidelines."

"What was the mood in the huddle?," linebacker Paul Naumoff repeated a question. "Well, I was kind of tired. I had just run 60-some yards trying to catch a guy I was never going to catch."

"I saw him taking off like that and I realized it was either me or seven points," said cornerback Levi Johnson, who finally caught Jackson near the sidelines. "When we got into the huddle, they congratulated me and that was it."

Linebackers Charlie Weaver, Naumoff, and Jim Laslavic thwarted successive plays and Bruce Gossett had to step back and kick a 19-yard field goal, cutting Detroit's halftime lead to 10-6.

Gossett had kicked a 27-yard field goal in the first quarter only to have Steve Owens cap an ensuing 81-yard drive with a one-yard dive for a touchdown. Errol Mann added a 31-yard field goal for Detroit.

Herman Weaver punted 61 yards to put San Francisco in a hole after the second Gossett field goal and when the 49ers kicked, Dick Jauron ran the punt back 45 yards to the 13.

Two running plays got nowhere so quarterback Bill Munson whipped a 13-yard bullet into Larry Walton's waiting hands to hike the edge to 17-6, a margin that proved necessary when left-handed rookie Dennis Morrison finally got his Forty Niners moving.

Until the last two San Francisco possessions of the game, Morrison's debut also looked like his closing act and encore. He missed his first six passes of the second half and was only 6-for-22-for 72 yards until the final two drives, the last of which ended with an 11-yard scoring pass to Jackson.

"I don't feel very good because we lost the game," Morrison said. "If only I could have gotten us into the end zone instead of throwing that interception."

He threw three interceptions, not too bad for a guy making his first pro start when you consider he threw 40 passes, completed 17 and totaled 171 yards with them.

Cal Poly will hold art exhibit, sale

Cal Poly Pomona will hold a one-day exhibit and sale of 1,000 prints by such artists as Rouault, Hogarth, Goya, Miro and Picasso in the library from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday.

The event is presented by the Ferdinand Roten Galleries of Baltimore, Md., and sponsored on campus by the Art Department. It is open to the public. In addition to the prints, there will be a collection of Western and Oriental manuscript pages, some dating to the 13th Century. Prices range from $10 to the thousands, but most prints, including those of the masters, are less than $100.

Ten per cent of the amount of the total sales is given to the university Art Department in the form of prints for the art collection or cash for student scholarships.

Area residents are invited not only to view, but also to leaf through the collection of original graphics. An authority on graphics of all types, Roten mounts more than 400 exhibits annually for major museums through the United States and Canada, in addition to the some 1,500 exhibits and sales arranged each year for universities, community organizations, and corporations. This is the seventh year the galleries have exhibited at Cal Poly.

CRAZY HORN —Jazz great Dizzy Gillespie will perform on the Evenings at Eight series in the auditorium of Citrus College at 8 p.m. Wednesday. This is the first program of the annual series at Citrus. Tickets are on sale at the auditorium box office.

'Enter Laughing'

Gallery presents delightful comedy

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

Many a farce and frothy comedy is saved from giggling emptiness by interesting characters intelligently projected, and such is the case with "Enter Laughing" which bowed at the Gallery Theater Friday night.

The Joseph Stein comedy (adapted from Carl Reiner's novel) plays at the Ontario theater at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays for several weekends. It's worth seeing.

Director Mark Shipley has gathered a solid cast that takes its work seriously and consequently is hilarious. The plot line is transparent, but the people and their interactions keep the interest lively. Shipley sets them off at a smooth tempo that seldom lags.

Our Hero is young Tyler Learned as David Kolowitz, the lad who has never acted but thinks he'd like to try. It's not what you would call a challenging role, but Learned does an excellent job in his varying parts — Awkward Actor, Naive Young Man Meeting Stage Vamp, Young Lover, Son Angered at Protective Parents, and so on.

Learned shows remarkable stage presence and a nice flexibility in all of his roles, now bold, now obtuse, now toe-in-the-sand embarrassed. He gives us a rewarding performance on several levels.

Learned's how-to-succeed-by-being-a-flop part is richly supported by excellent characterization of Gary Hobo as a fine Jewish Mr. Foreman, a figure of warmth and insight right out of "Fiddler on the Roof." Hobo is grumbling, authentic, loveable and funny — the important thing.

The young man on the way up is also supported by three attractively sexy females with a variety of interests but a similar perspective. These are Jan Love as Miss E, Lyn Shela as Angela, and Jo Glidewell as Wanda. We should all be so lucky.

Tina Geer and Douglas Dowd offer us a delightful portrayal of the anxious parents of the ambitious young man. It's an authentic characterization full of chicken soup warmth and humor that is instantly recognizable yet personal and individual.

Another cogent interpretation of a stereotype is John Nichols' performance as Marlowe, the director. The role lends itself easily to charicature, but Nichols gives it a full load of imaginative whimsy and individualization that leaves the stereotype far behind.

Dominique Lavoie provides a beefy, amaiable Marvin, the adroit foil to Kolowitz, and Norman Rieck, Ken Lee, Ray Adamas, Joel Gossett and Dwight Larick chip in with vital contributions in smaller roles.

"Enter Laughing" makes you exit laughing.

Borax strikers reject offer

BORON (UPI) — Striking workers at the U.S. Borax and Chemical Co. here voted Tuesday to reject a company offer to settle the four month old walkout.

U.S. Borax offered an 11 per cent pay increase, which was rejected by the 800-member International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, Local 30.

The union is asking a 13 per cent hike and has declined to negotiate four contract proposals introduced by the company. The workers walked off their jobs June 15.

The company is currently hiring workers to replace the strikers.

Bill Macy

Ex-cab driver knows how to handle Maude

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It takes an ex-New York cab driver to handle loudmouthed, emasculating Maude Findlay, the Mrs. Fulcharge of the weekly "Maude" series.

That man is Bill Macy, who plays her husband, Walter.

Deceptively quiet and hypersensitive, Macy refuses to be intimidated in his characterization, or personally, by the overbearing Maude.

Sometimes he cannot separate frustrated Walter Findlay from Bill Macy who eked out a living for 10 years pushing a hack through Manhattan.

"On a personal level I wouldn't last five minutes," Macy said. "I'd walk out on her. Professionally, I look for strong, positive attitudes so that Walter can do more than just cope with her.

"Most male viewers admire Walter because he holds his own with Maude. But the funny part is I'm emotionally tied into the character I play because I have to BE Walter 12 hours a day. That's half my lifetime and I sleep eight. So I'm only Bill Macy about four hours a day."

Macy has large, liquid brown eyes. There is an essential gentleness about him As oposed to Walter his voice is soft, his manner inoffensive.

He cheerfully admits he probably would be unable to handle Maude had he not staved off starvation between acting jobs driving a cab.

"I learned about aggression as a cab driver," he said. "It really helps me on the show. When I first began driving I took a lot of abuse and felt like quitting. Passengers were always giving me a hard time.

"They'd say, 'You're the worst cab driver in New York.' So I got aggressive myself. I turned around, told them to get the hell out of the cab. Then I translated that attitude to my private life.

"People who use aggression understand it when it is used against them. And that goes for Maude, too.

Adult school gets grants for disabled

The adult education division of the Hacienda-La Puente Unified School District has been awarded two grants totaling $87,116 by the State Department of Rehabilitation.

Richard L. Silvis, administrator of the department's San Gabriel Valley District, said the money is to be used for the vocational rehabilitation of disabled persons.

To qualify for the grants, the district contributed $21,779, bringing the total amount available for the program to $108,895.

Silvis will present the grants to Ken Blackwelder, coordinator of Rehabilitation Services at the school district's Valley Vocational Center in Industry, at a ceremony Wednesday at 10 a.m. in district offices.

The first grant of $50,724 will help provide equipment and furniture for 100 additional work spaces in the vocational center's sheltered workshop. It also will provide equipment to speed the production flow of materials into the shop, business machines for training, and the placement of students in outside employment.

The second grant of $36,392 will provide continued support for the staff engaged in the vocational testing program.

Idea: The Land Ferry

Amy Farrell explains,"It brings you and your car downtown so you can use it during the day."

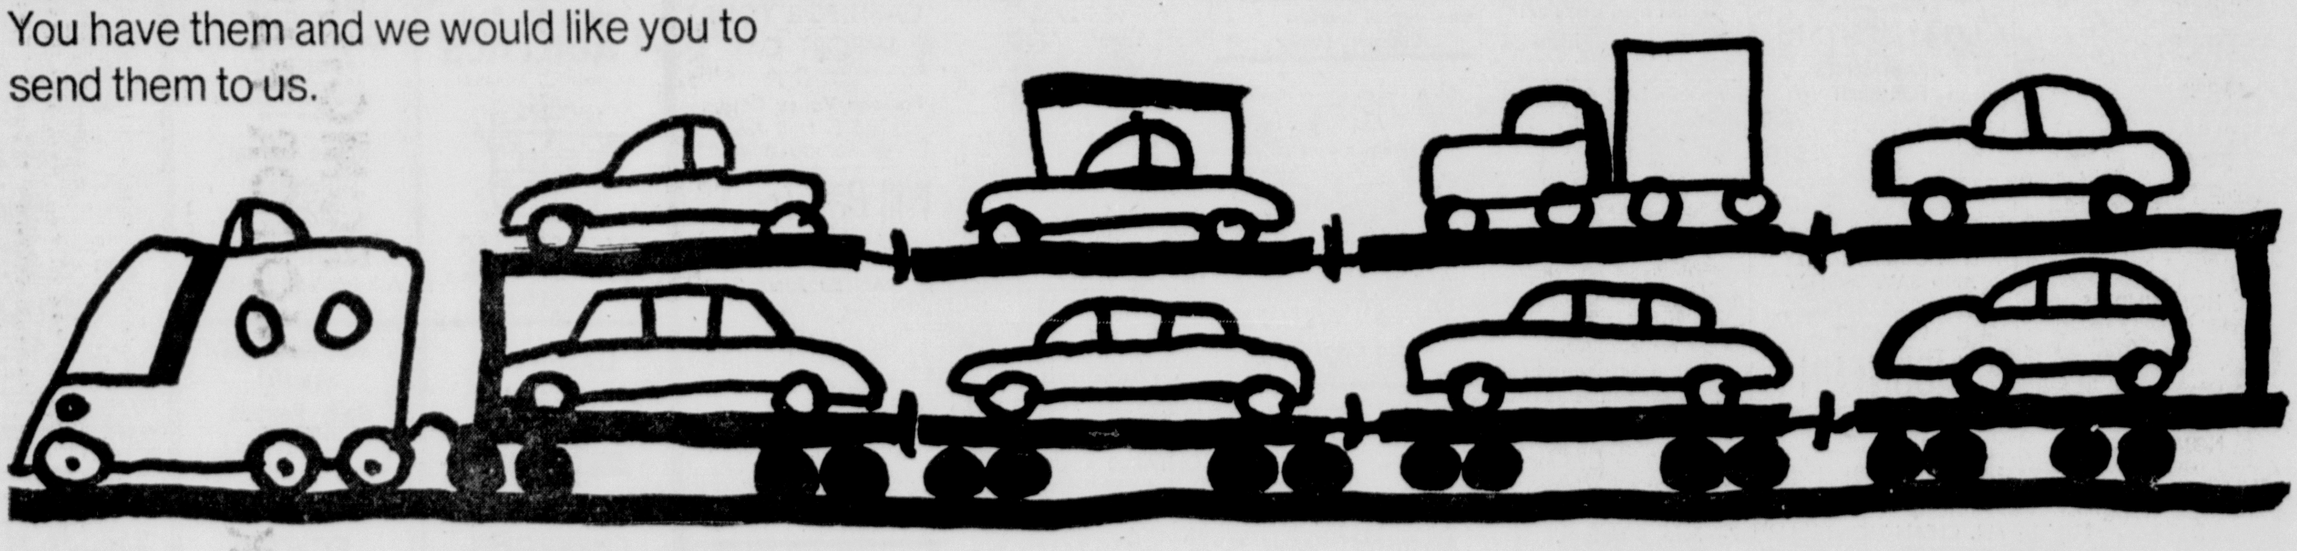
"I got the idea for the Land Ferry watching ferryboats. I thought a ferryboat on land could solve a lot of problems.

"It would be easy. We could use those trailers that carry new cars.

"In the morning you drive your car onto the Land Ferry. While it drives downtown you can sit and drink coffee and read the morning paper.

'Another advantage of the Land Ferry is you could put it into operation practically tomorrow morning."

Amy feels her idea would reduce pollution, rush hour congestion, and gas consumption. But there are other ways to go. Other ideas. You have them and we would like you to send them to us.



That's why it is not the intention of Atlantic Richfield to endorse any one idea. Public Transportation to meet everyone's needs, needs everyone's ideas.

FALL CAR CARE

Is Especially Important

- To help you enjoy a winter of trouble-free driving.
- Fast, easy starts.
- Reduced exhaust emissions.
- Maximum gasoline economy.

Progress-Bulletin, Pomona, California, Thursday, October 18, 1973

Car care more important than ever

Like the dieter who has just shed 20 pounds and rewards himself with a double banana split, the motorist seems to be celebrating the abatement of the severe gasoline shortage with a new binge of wastefulness. At least this is the contention of the U.S. Federal Energy Agency which is detecting signs of "business as usual" when it comes to use of fuel.

Even though the supply of gasoline at the fuel pump is more plentiful now than earlier this year, serious problems remain. Gasoline prices are in some cases double what they were before the crisis. Some say they are going to rise even higher.

Oil supply dwindles daily

There is still only a given amount of oil left in the earth and that supply dwindles every day. Noted author Barzara Ward is mong those who believe that the supply of crude oil will be exhausted in a century or two.

On a shorter term basis, there is still a lack of political stability in many parts of the oil-producing world and black gold remains a potent bargaining weapon.

Thus common sense dictates that the motorist continue the gasoline-saving efforts he made during the depths of the shortage. He should continue to observe those prudent practices of careful driving.

He should adhere to speed limits that are not only saving gasoline but human life as well.

He should continue to maintain his car's engine and other components related to good gas economy.

Yet, here's what seems to be happening. Police report that cars are being driven faster than the 55 mile per hour speed limit. Expressway traffic jams are reaching their pre-shortage density as public transportation and car pools are being abandoned.

With the hardest driving days of all coming upon us this fall and winter, it is hoped that good car maintenance remains a habit with the motorist.

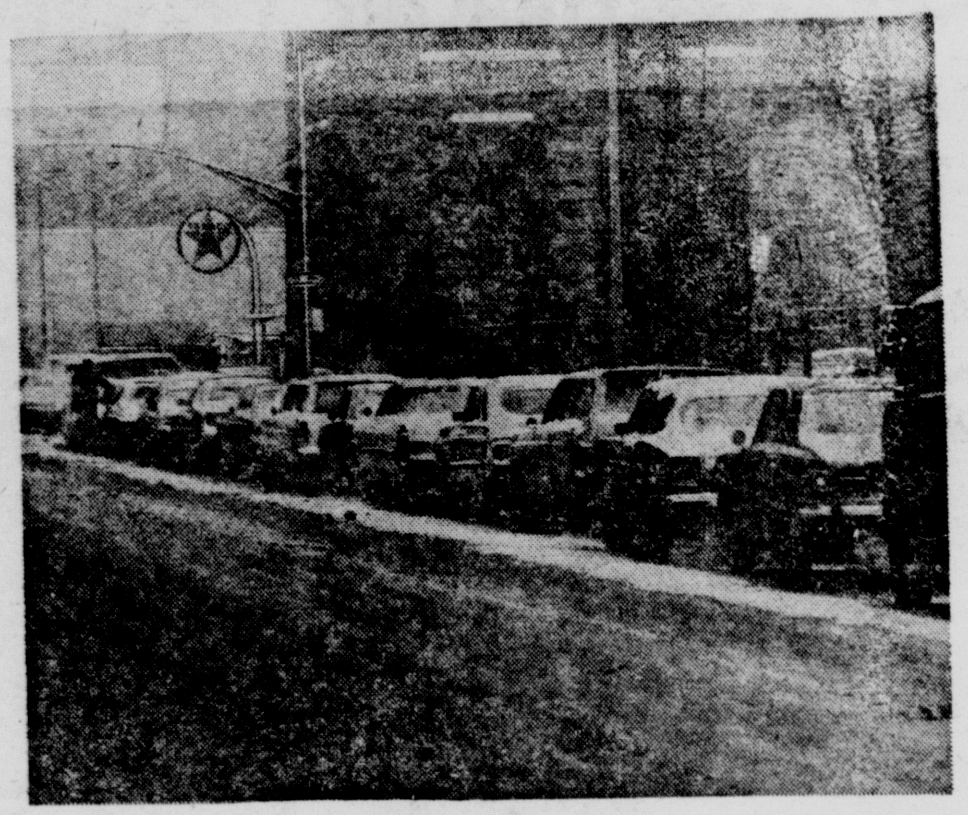
Fall and winter driving conditions often create slow and s t o p-and-go-traffic patterns. This situation is wasteful of expensive fuel and only a car with a well-tuned engine can get efficient gas consumption.

Tuned engine best insurance

A tuned engine is also the best insurance against what AAA indicates is the Number One problem facing motorists. That is starting trouble which affects about 50,000,000 car owners, primarily striking in the winter time.

So with gasoline prices at record-high levels, the prices of new cars at all-time highs and costs in general on an upward cycle, money spent on car maintenance is a sound investment. In addition to keeping your car running longer and better on the least possible fuel, maintenance gives you the extra benefits of safety, good performance and trouble-free operation all year around.

Start by making sure this fall and winter find you in a well-functioning car. Ask your favorite auto serviceman to check your car from bumper to bumper and roof to tire treads.



REMEMBER LAST WINTER? — During the depths of the gasoline shortage, motorists often lined up for blocks to get the precious fuel. While fuel may be more plentiful today, prices are sometimes almost double what they were before the energy crisis. So the prudent motorist will continue to drive sensibly and keep his engine in tune as well as maintaining other critical components.

Questions and answers

Under severe driving conditions, it is best to change oil filter when changing oil?

Yes. Always change filter when replacing the oil if your car is subjected to severe driving conditions such as trailer towing or constant high-speed running. Many experienced mechanics and fleets change the filer with every oil charge to prevent re-circulation of the dirty oil that's caught in an old filter. Keeping oil clean is a major factor in minimizing engine wear.

A tune-up can improve gas mileage by a much as 8.2 per cent.

True. In extreme cases, when engines are badly out of tune, fuel wastage can go as high as 20 to 35 per cent.

Installation of radial tires can save up to a mile and a half per gallon.

True. Radial tires have less rolling resistance, therefore requiring less power to move the car.

Right? no, wrong

Will tires last longer if the air pressure is reduced by about four pounds during a long distance trip?

No. Tires should be kept at their recommended inflation pressure for all normal driving. Pressure should be checked at least once a month. Underinflation causes excessive wear at the outer edges; overinflation causes excessive wear at the center.

★ ★ ★

If your car won't start and a clicking sound is heard when the ignition switch is turned, you know the battery is dead and should be replaced.

Wrong—save your money. It may not be the battery at all. First check for corroded battery terminals, which often causes the symptoms of a rundown battery. Clean them up and try again before investing in a new battery.

★ ★ ★

Disc brakes need no service until a squeak is heard.

Wrong—Some disc brakes have a warning device that sets up a whine when wear is excessive, but the squeal also may be caused by metal-to-metal contact due to brake pads having worn completely away. This condition can cause serious and expensive damage to the rotors. For safety's sake, have all brakes checked at least twice a year; more often as they reach the end of their life expectancy.

★ ★ ★

Is the only purpose of shock absorbers to keep the car from bouncing.?

No. Shock absorbers are intended to keep the wheel in contact with the road under all driving conditions, so this becomes a safety consideration. Firm shock absorbers will prevent loss of control when steering or braking in an emergency under rough road conditions. Also, shock absorbers help to reduce suspension and tire wear due to excessive wheel hop.

Swiss swallows trapped by cold given free ride south

GENEVA (UPI) — Thousands of tiny swallows, trapped in a sudden early Switzerland winter, are being bundled up in old shoe boxes and taken to train stations for free rides south.

Schools, police and factories throughout Switzerland are collecting tens of thousands of the dying birds trapped by bitterly cold weather and unable to fly south for the winter.

All over the country people are collecting the swallows, placing them carefully in warm boxes and taking them either to the railroad or local offices of the Swiss airline, Swissar.

Airline and railroad officials are taking the birds to sunnier climates in Italy, France and Spain. The birds are released in the warm winds to continue their winter migration.

Winter weather arrived in Switzerland two weeks ago, two months early. The cold killed all the insects normally eaten by the swallows, and violent snowstorms prevented them flying over the Alps to the south.

Swissair said it has so far flown, free of charge, more than 10,000 swallows to Nice, Marseille and Barcelona.

The railroads transport them through the St. Gotthard tunnel into Italy.

People found up to 20 swallows huddling in one nest to keep warm. But overcrowded nests cause suffocation. Dead swallows lie all over parks and tree-lined avenues.

Why you can't get started

Servicing or replacing the car battery may not be the answer to a car's winter starting woes.

That's what a high percentage of motorists learned when they experienced starting failure and sought to correct it solely through attention to the battery.

According to a hard-starting survey conducted by Champion Spark Plug Company last winter, repeated failure was experienced by 38.9 per cent of car owners who had their batteries charged after initial "can't starts."

Of those motorists installing a new battery after not starting, 25.9 per cent had at least one other failure.

When car owners treated starting woes with engine tune-up, they had better success in forestalling future problems, the survey showed. Rate of repeat can't starts was 14.6 per cent after a tune-up. Installation of new spark plugs alone was a better answer to starting trouble than battery service since 18.7 per cent had additional problems with new plugs.

The survey also revealed hard starting continues to be the leading problem confronting motorists. In the U.S., 29 per cent of owners reported at least one failure last winter. In Canada, 30 per cent had trouble.

Cold weather was not solely to blame for starting trouble. Warm weather regions in the U.S. were only slightly below the national average in reported "can't starts."

In Pacific Coast states, 27 per cent of car owners surveyed had at least one failure while the South Atlantic states had a 28 per cent "can't start" rate.

These areas also had the lowest incidence of tune-up purchases in the U.S.

Common car service terms

If your favorite service mechanic tells you that you need a universal joint, he's not inviting you to invest in a bar near the United Nations building. He's telling you that a critical part of your car's drive shaft needs replacement.

There are a number of common automobile service terms that could be confusing, if you don't talk the language. The American Petroleum Institute provides a short dictionary of those terms.

BAD SHOCKS

Shock absorbers improve the riding comfort by softening the impact of bumps in the road. For safety, shocks should be checked for damage, wear or fluid leaks.

KING PINS—
Royal brooches.

Not really. They're metal rods which allow your front wheels to pivot when you make a turn. If they're worn, get them fixed; it's dangerous.

FRONT END WOBBLE—
A go-go dancer.

Wrong again — it's a vibration caused by worn parts of the steering mechanism, wheels that are out of line from hitting bumps, or worn king pins . . . and it should be corrected immediately.

WORN SHOES—
Hippie sandals.

It's brake shoes they're talking about. When you step on the brake pedal the shoes are hydraulically forced against the brake drums, causing the car to slow down. Improperly adjusted shoes may cause premature wear and damage to the brake drum.

FILTER—
The end of a cigarette.

There are three filters on your car. One helps keep dirt out of the air entering the carburetor, another purifies the oil circulating in the crank-case, and a third traps sediment from the gasoline before it enters your carburetor. These filters need periodic cleaning or changing.

CATALYTIC MUFFLER—
An exotic fur neckpiece.

Nope. Catalytic mufflers are pollution control devices currently designed to reduce certain exhaust emissions. Basically, they chemically "purify" the gases left after the fuel has burned.

PLUGGED PCV —
An assassinated foreign dignitary.

Missed again. The Positive Crankcase Ventilation valve is a pollution control device designed to help cut down on emissions into the air we breathe. When it isn't checked regularly, it could hamper your car's performance.

DIRTY LIFTERS —
Sneaky thieves.

When sludge accumulates on the valve lifters, the valves can't do their job, and grit and other contaminants get into the finely machined parts of the engine, causing wear. A clogged oil line may be the culprit.

ABOARD THE U.S.S. ROOSEVELT — Of the hundreds of Cleaner Air and Fuel Economy Clinics held this year, none had a more unusual setting than those aboard the U.S.S. Franklin D. Roosevelt. The specially-equipped mobile training van was loaded aboard the ship so that crew members could be shown how engine condition effects gas economy and emissions on military vehicles and private automobiles.

Cleaner air clinics for car repairmen

Clinics featuring the latest service techniques to improve gasoline economy and reduce air pollution are being presented to auto repairmen throughout the nation by Champion Spark Plug Company.

According to David L. Walker, Champion Automotive Technical Services Director, both fuel consumption and exhaust emission levels are related to engine condition. Tests by Champion show how tune-up both improves gasoline mileage and reduces emissions.

Newly-tuned engines save an average 8.2 per cent in fuel compared to engines that haven't been tuned in more than 10,000 miles. In extreme cases, where engines were badly neglected, a ture-up cut fuel consumption by 20 to 35 per cent.

An average reduction of nearly 50 per cent in hydrocarbon and carbon monixide emissions, at idle, was recorded after tune-up. In addition, 40 per cent of the cars tested would have failed existing emissions standards before ture-up. After needed engine adjustments, failures fell to 3.3 per cent.

Three out of every five motorists in this country are wasting gasoline and emitting excessive pollutants because of engine neglect. Such neglect can waste up to six gallons of gasoline per 20-gallon tankful. In addition, carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon emissions can be more than doubled when engines are not running properly.

Mr. Walker said engine tune-up can save significant amounts of fuel and help clean up the air.

He cited a statement by a leading U.S. government energy official which said untuned engines are wasting 140,000 barrels of gasoline per day.

He also stated that estimates based on a Champion survey indicate 42,000,000 U.S. cars are emitting excess pollutants because they are not in proper tune.

Working from a specially-equipped mobile training van, Champion Regional Service Engineers can demonstrate most conditions that cause trouble in automotive ignition systems. Heart of the unit is a multi-fuel, single-cylinder engine equipped with a dynamometer. This unit can simulate almost any highway driving situation.

The van also houses special instrumentation including measuring devices for exhaust emissions.

Typical engine malfunctions that waste gas and cause excessive carbon monoxide, include faulty carburetor, sticking choke, wrong idle setting, dirty air cleaner and related defects. These malfunctions contribute to a poor air-fuel mixture.

High hydrocarbon readings and excessive fuel use generally result from engine misfire and incomplete combusion of fuel. Common causes include weak ignition systems, worn out or fouled spark plugs, improper timing, worn points or condensers, bad wires or poor compression due to engine in need of mechanical repair.

Since they were inaugurated in 1971, more than 3,500 tunepup clinics have been conducted in the U.S. attended by over 150,000.

Wipers need special care

As with so many other vital components on your car, your windshield wipers are most likely to fail just when you need them the most--during the next rainstorm.

During the winter, windshield wipers have to fight freezing snow, ice, slush and road salt.

In the summer, heat, smog, and even your service station attendant's windshield washer spray work together to reduce the efficiency of your wiper system. It's no wonder, after sitting quietly on your windshield deteriorating day-in and day-out, that they often fail to do their job.

Check when raining

The best time to check your windshield wiper system is during a rainstorm. Or you can check it the next time you go through a car wash. You can also perform a good check while someone sprays your windshield with a garden hose. However you choose to check your wipers, you should check them on both the fast and slow speeds.

If any trouble symptoms are present, you should replace as much of your wiper system as is necessary to eliminate the problem. In many cases, all that is needed is new squeegees (the rubber part that contacts the windshield).

When you do replace all or part of your wiper blades, make sure you replace both sides at the same time. If one wiper is shot, it's a good bet the other one is about to go, too. Safe vision during hazardous road conditions is too important to risk for a few dollars.

Feet cold with heater on? check thermostat

If you have been putting up with a not-so-hot heater in your car, it may be an indication of damage to more than your disposition.

Your car's heater derives its heat from the water that circulates through the cooling system. When that water is too cool to warm your feet, it probably means your engine is cold, too!

The usual cause of overcooling is an incorrect or defective thermostat. The net effect will be felt in your pocketbook as well as in the car on cold days.

Most immediately, you will find your gasoline bills rising over and above the normal cold weather increase when your choke is working overtime. The longer your choke is on, the greater your gas consumption.

Inflates the bills

If the engine is running even colder than you expect it to in the winter, the overworked choke really inflates your gasoline bills. And all because of a defective thermostat.

Then there is oil dilution, leading to sludge formation. Sound ominious? It is to an engine.

In a cold engine, fuel doesn't vaporize well, tends to seep in liquid form down into the engine oil, instead of burning in the cylinder. This, plus water formed by condensation in the cold engine, reduces the lubricating qualities of the oil.

In freezing weather conditions, lubrication can be a particularly critical factor. An engine is designed to run quite hot, and all metal parts are designed with this heat in mind.

As we all remember from junior high school science class, metal expands with heat and contracts with cold. So a cold engine has a lot of slightly loose parts that need the best lubrication possible to prevent rapid wear.

The final horror of the cold engine is the fouling of sparks plugs, which may ensue. Plugs fire poorly, foul rapidly and compound the problem.

Fouled plugs, rapid wear of engine parts and inefficient engine operation result in a condition that has become more critical than cold feet or tight budgets. It's air pollution, because this kind of unwanted smoke out of the exhaust pipe.

Students share tips for gas economy

Students at the Champion Economy Rally shared these fuel saving tips.

KEEP SPEED DOWN. Tests conducted with a popular American car have indicated a 25 percent improvement in fuel economy when speeds are reduced from 70 to 50 miles per hour. Wind resistance increases as car speed increases, and more energy is thus required to move the car at higher speeds.

AVOID "JACK RABBIT" STARTS. Gradual acceleration in city driving can save as much as two miles per gallon compared to rapid acceleration. That's because it takes a lot of extra energy to increase an automobile's acceleration rate. A power valve, located in the carburetor, lets more fuel into the cylinders under full acceleration. In addition, an accelerator pump provides extra fuel to avoid hesitation when the gas pedal is jabbed.

KEEP SPEED CONSTANT. Driving at steady speeds helps to save gasoline. Unnecessary acceleration activates the accelerator pump and power valve thus injecting extra —and wasted—fuel into the system.

ANTICIPATE STOPS. It is best to plan ahead for all possible traffic conditions. This allows for gradual, rather than abrupt, stops and this smooth driving contributes to better fuel economy. In addition, gradual braking prolongs the life of brake linings.

AVOID ENGINE IDLING. An idling engine wastes energy; it does no useful work while consuming fuel. Excessive idling may also shorten engine life if the practice is repeated over a long term period. As a guide, drivers should not idle engines for more than three minutes, if possible.

WARM ENGINE BY DRIVING. Drivers will obtain better economy by driving the car to warm the engine, rather than allowing it to idle excessively. This speeds up the warming process, and thus saves gasoline. The driver must remember, however, that c old engine does not respond as quickly, so care must be exercised in all traffic situations where engine response is critical.

MINIMIZE THE USE OF AIR CONDITIONERS. Air-conditioning puts a substantial load on automobile engines, and should, therefore, be used only on the hottest day. While driving at 30 miles per hour, for example, use of the air conditioner can result in fuel economy loss of two miles per gallon. As a rule, use of the air conditioner cuts gasoline mileage by 10 per cent.

MAINTAIN CORRECT TIRE PRESSURE. Under-inflated tires reduce gasoline mileage slightly. Soft tires also wear out more quickly, and many adversely affect vehicle handling, thus creating a potential safety hazard. Many automobile manufacturers recommend increasing the tire air pressure by approximately four pounds before high-speed driving. Tires should not, however, be inflated above the maximum recommended pressure.

KEEP THE ENGINE TUNED UP. Spark plug misfiring may result in a significant increasse in fuel consumption. In laboratory tests at speeds of 30 and 50 miles per hour, for example, spark plugs misfiring 10 percent of the time rsulted in an eight percent increase in fuel consumption. In addition, ignition-timing deviating from the manufacturer's setting resulted in a significatn decrease in fuel economy. For example, a 10 degree retard in basic spark timing may result in an average loss of 1.3 miles per gallon at speeds of 30, 50, and 70 miles per hour. Drivers should be reminded that these and other obstacles to efficient engine performance can be eiliminated with a complete tun-up.

SERVICE AIR FILTER. A dirty air filter can cause a decrease in fuel economy, and a decrease in power output, by restricting the flow of air to the engine. Drivers should therefore be advised to change the air filter at specified intervals, or according to the manufacturer's recommendation. In addition, frequent air filter servicing is required if considerable driving is done in sandy or dustry conditions.

DON'T RIDE THE BRAKES. Even slight foot pressure on the brake pedal can apply the brakes, especially power brakes. This wastes fuel energy which might be used to move the car. It also wears the brakes out faster than normal.

KEEP TRANSMISSION IN HIGH GEAR. Keep both automatic and manual transmissions in the highest gear possible. With manual transmission, shift into high gear as soon as you can; with an automatic transmission, use a light foot on the accelerator to encourage the transmission to shift into high gear quickly. These actions will save gasoline.

MINIMIZE VEHICLE LOADS. Transporting unnecessary weight in your car will cause it to use more fuel. The difference is not great on level ground, but does show up when climbing a hill and you will probably have to use your brakes more oftzen. Hauling a trailer is even more costly in terms of extra fuel consumption. In this case, not only must the weight of the unit be pulled, but the extra wind resistance of a large, boxy unit must be overcome.

SERVICE THE MANIFOLD CONTROL VALVE. The manifold heat control valve should be serviced periodically. This valve, located in the exhaust system of some vehicles, allows exhaust gases to heat the intake manifold during cold engine operation. These gases heat the area under the carburetor to aid in the vaporization of gasoline while the engine is cold. As the engine warms up, a temperature-sensitve spring causes the valve to direct all of the exhaust gases to the exhaust pipe and away from the intake manifold.

WHEEL ALIGNMENT. "Toe in" or "Toe out" has the effect of dragging your front tires sideways and causes premature tire wear. It takes power to carry this extra load and that takes gas from your tank.

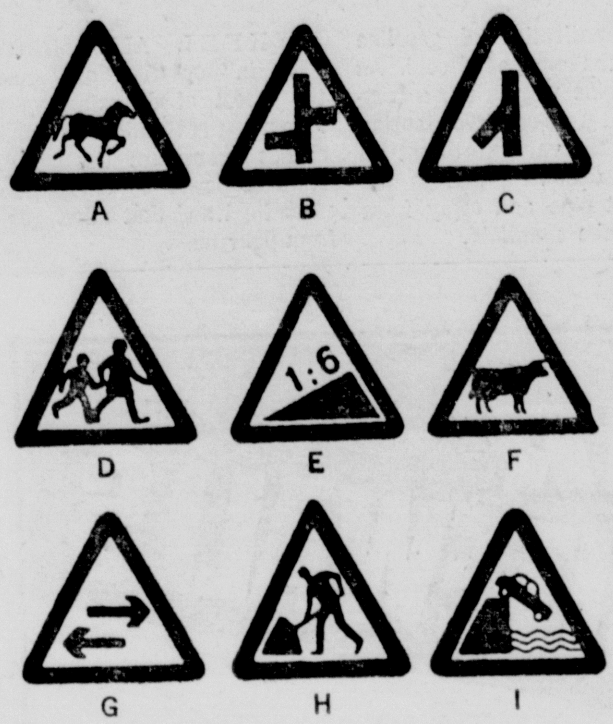
FUN WITH SIGNS



International-type road signs, indications that give their messages in pictures not words, are becoming more popular on this continent. It doesn't take much of a humorous flight of fancy to read things into these signs that may not have been their original intent.

For instance, these signs might be saying:

A. Get a Horse!

B. Unorthodox Church Ahead

C. Ban Half the Bombs

D. Gas Station Ahead, Mommy

E. Dry Martinis Ahead

F. No Red Cars Allowed

G. The Natives Aren't Friendly

H. High Winds, Watch Your Umbrella

I. Car Wash Ahead

For what they actually mean, see below:

A. Horses Ahead

B. Traffic Entering from Both Sides

C. Traffic Entering from Left

D. School Zone

E. Steep Grade

F. Cattle Crossing Ahead

G. Two-Way Traffic

H. Road Work Ahead

I. Caution, Road Ends Near Water

Seven points to help you start cold motor

Like people, car engines are reluctant to get going on cold mornings. It's a small wonder when near-zero temperatures thicken various lubricating oils and greases which makes it tougher for parts of the engine to move.

Also, the colder the temperature, the less efficient the battery becomes. At zero degrees, for instance, the battery is only about half as efficient as on a normal summer morning.

Herewith is a list of tips from Champion Spark Plug Company. These will keep voltage demands on your car's battery down during the vulnerable period when the battery loses much of its punch.

1. Transmission: To lessen the load on the starter, release manual shift transmissions by depressing the clutch pedal; place automatic transmissions in "neutral" before attempting to start the engine.

2. Electrical Accessories: Shut off lights, windshield wipers, defrosters, heater, radio, etc., before attempting to start the engine. This will assure maximum voltage available for both the starter motor and the ignition system.

3. Choking: While complete setting of hard choke is obvious, some drivers don't realize that most automatic chokes must be set "on" by depressing the accelerator before starting. (Many cold weather starting failures are due entirely to this oversight.)

4. Pumping the Accelerator: An additional one or two pumps on the accelerator pedal will dump raw gasoline into the intake manifold and help get enough vaporized fuel into the cylinders during very cold weather.

5. Throttle Setting: When the starter is energized, the accelerator should be about half way down to get enough air rushing through the manifold to pick up the fuel and carry it into the cylinders.

6. Starter Motor: Energize the starter at relatively short intervals. Avoid grinding away or you may overheat the starter motor and cause excessive drain on the battery.

7. Shut-off: Place transmission in "neutral" and run engine at fast idle. When switch is off, depress accelerator to "flood" the engine. This will insure a supply of gasoline in the cylinders for the next start.

In Germany car care is given top priority

The Germans are frequently accused of loving their cars more dearly than their children. A status symbol as well as a means of individual freedom of movement, the car in Germany is valued as an important personal investment that has to be taken care of.

Rising prices and increasing labor costs, the critical space problem on a partly obsolete network of roads and the latent threat of higher taxes and gas prices are a constant worry to car owners.

Service and maintenance these days are definitely ranging before performance and prestige value in prospective buyer considerations.

The liberal use of salt as a means of melting ice and snow on wintry roads has taught many car owners the hard way the meaning of rust corrosion. Statistics figure out the average loss of value per car and year by corrosion to be around 200 Deutsch-marks ($155).

Many car manufacturers fit their products with longlife-undersealing these days. In all cases where this is not being done, purchasers are well advised to have their new cars undersealed when new—before costly cleaning and de-rusting operations become necessary.

Body protected

During the last two years two other systems of protection against corrosion have proved their worth: spraying of all chassis and body box section internals with a protective coating or filling them with plastic foam.

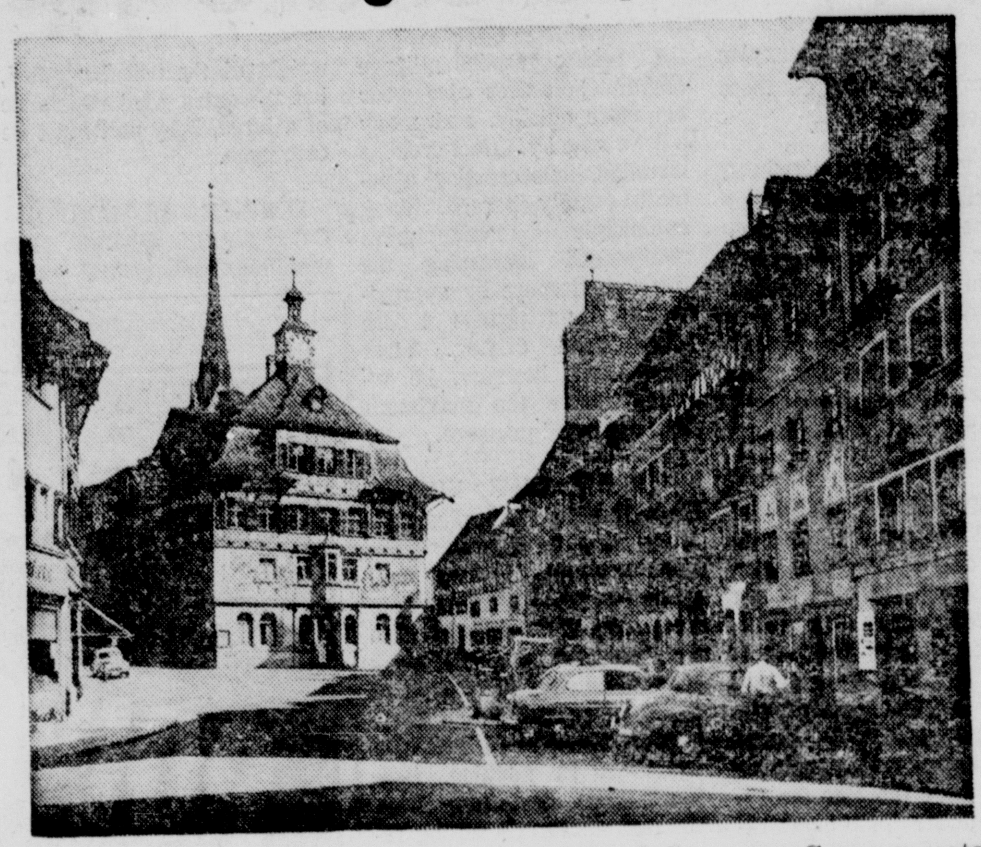
Mounting labor costs have steeply increased maintenance and servicing bills more recently. A new regulation requires workshops to hang out the amount charged per hour, so customers can figure out what their bill many look like. With labor cost between 30 and 45 Deutschmarks ($8 to $11) an hour many car-owners have to revert to do-it-yourself practices. The garage trade tries to counter this with publicity methods.

The currently threatening fuel shortage, however, seems to make all other worries look mirror. The discussion between motorists seems to center about one theme only: how to achieve improved fuel economy?

The most efficient recipe seems to concern both car and driver. If carefull applied it may well mean fuel savings of up to 20 per cent. First requirements obviously always is a good mechanical condition of the car.

20% per cent fuel savings

The save fuel and to lengthen the life expectancy of your car, two things should be kept in mind: "Rude riding methods melt your money away" and "Rust never rests"—so you have to fight it, wherever it shows.



BACK STREETS — Off the major traffic arteries tourists can still enjoy the romantic atmosphere of medieval Germany. German motorists keep cars in top shape to enjoy trips to places like this.

Medical staple

More than 50 per cent of the medical teaching institutions in the United States are now teaching the use of stapling as a surgical technique, according to the United States Surgical Corporation.

Safety requires check of power steering

If your car is equipped with power steering, you may think that this system is very complicated and must be serviced by highly skilled technicians using costly special tools.

This is not the case.

Granted, a power steering system is considerably more complex than a non-power system. But most power steering maintenance can be accomplished by the motorist or his service station operator. Special tools are not usually required.

At the heart of your car's power steering system is the power steering pump. This hydraulic pump merely supplies the pressure to turn your car's wheels when you turn the steering wheel. This pump rarely breaks down as long as you make sure its supply of power steering fluid does not get too low. Periodic checking of the fluid level is all that is necessary for regular maintenance of the power steering pump.

One other item that should be checked periodically is the belt that connects the pump to the engine. If this belt should break, your entire power steering system will cease to function, immediately. This could be extremely dangerous if you are traveling at high speed on the freeway.

While you are checking the fluid level and the drive belts, check the hoses that connect the pump to the other components in the system. Hose connections should be tight and leak-free. Hoses should be firm and free of cracks. Leakage in the hoses of the system is the main cause of fluid loss, which in turn is the main cause of power steering trubles.

Don't forget tune-up No. 2

Take your car to your service station and ask the attendant to give your car "Tune-Up Number 2" and he'll probably look at you and scratch his head. He knows about tune-ups, but he probably doesn't know about "the second tune-up."

Yet "Tune-Up No. 2" is a vital part of your car's maintenance, one that's long overdue in most cars.

Tune-Up No. 2 is simply a thorough inspection and check of all the components in your car's cooling system and replacement of those parts that are worn or malfunctioning. It is a cooling system tune-up.

Why is it important? To understand the need for a cooling system tune-up, we must first look at the function of the system. The cooling system keeps the operating temperature of the engine at a level at which it will perform at top efficiency.

Keeping its cool

To accomplish this task, automobile manufacturers have developed the pressurized cooling system which allows special coolant (not water) to rise well above the ordinary boiling point without "boiling over." The cooling system on the average automotive engine must be able to withstand in excess of 17 pounds of pressure combined with underhood and coolant tempeatures that range from 278 F. to 300 F.

These higher temperatures and pressures put tremendous strains on all cooling system components — hoses, V-belts, water pump, thermostat, radiator cap.

It takes only one of these key parts to fail or malfunction to cause the engine to overheat with costly internal engine damage as the likely result.

If you are driving a late model car and it's been more than a year since you've had your cooling system checked, you're overdue for trouble. You're ready for "Tune-Up No. 2."

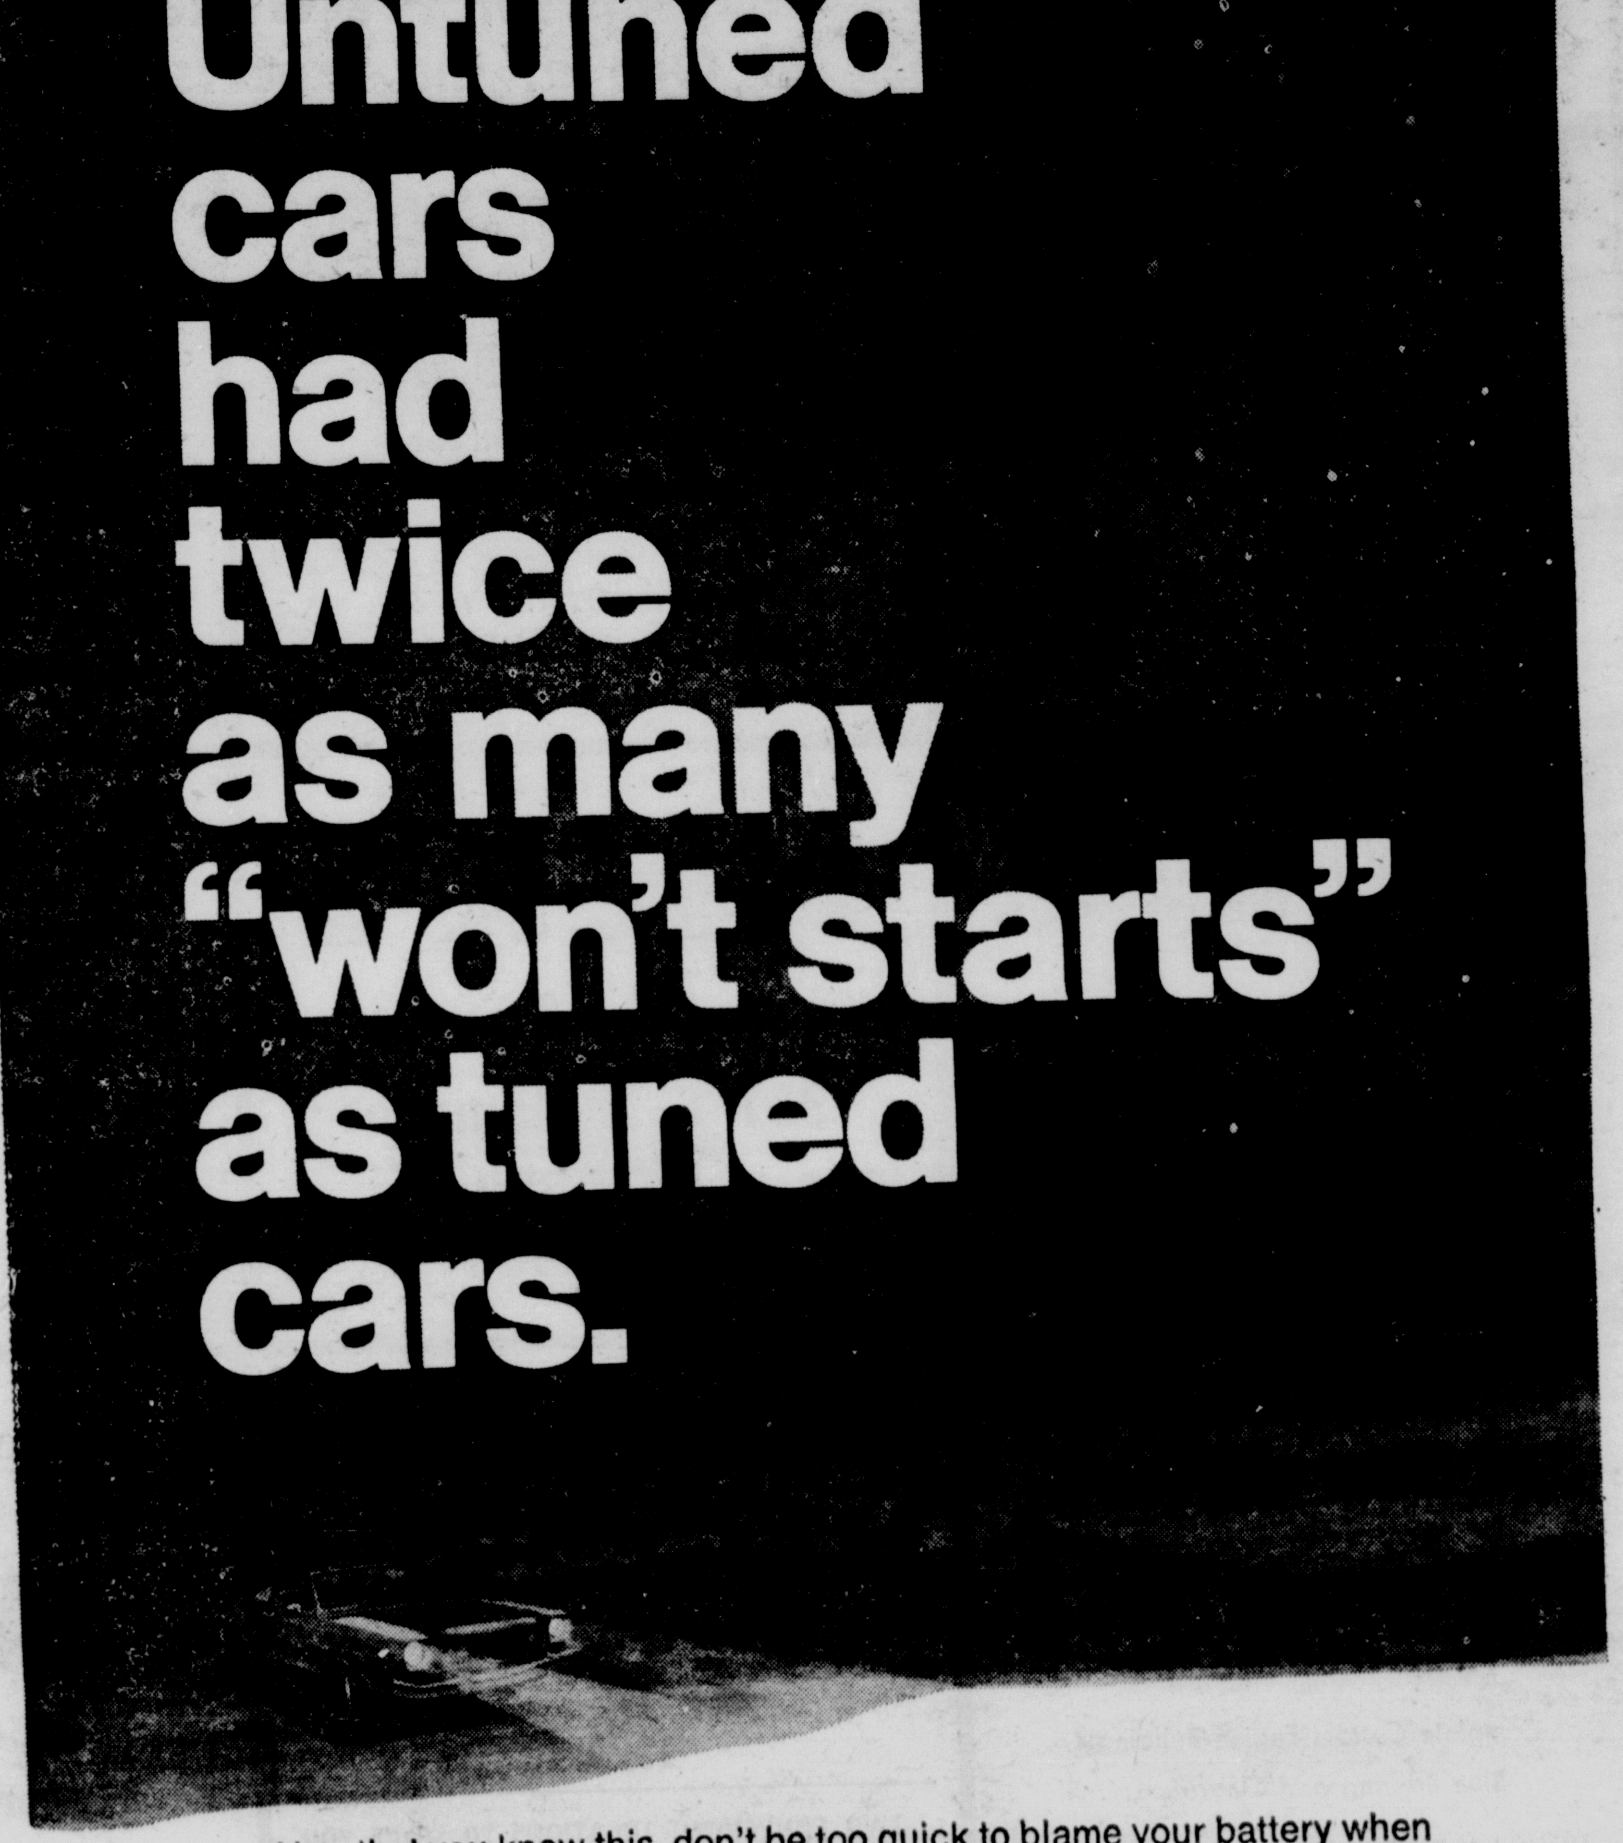
It's worth it

The cost of a cooling system tune-up is relatively small compared to the potential savings you could realize by preventing a costly breakdown or expensive engine repairs. A cooling system tune-up normally takes about an hour and a half to accomplish and it carries a nominal flat rate of $16.00 plus parts.

If your service station man or garage mechanic doesn't know about "Tune-Up No. 2," ask him to check his Flat Rate Manual or have him contact The Gates Rubber Company, 999 South Broadway, Denver, Colorado 80217 for complete information on cooling system tune-ups.

IN WINTER TESTS:

Untuned cars had twice as many "won't starts" as tuned cars.



Now that you know this, don't be too quick to blame your battery when you have starting trouble. Instead, see your mechanic for a more thorough diagnosis. Half the time ignition failure turns out to be the troublemaker. Trouble that a tune-up can help correct fast. And be sure to ask for Champion spark plugs in that tune-up. Champion. It starts more of the world's cars than any other spark plug brand.
